First NORDA change-of-command ceremonies to be at NSTL Monday

The first change-of-command for the Navy's newest research laboratory at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County will be Monday.

In traditional Navy ceremonies, command of the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity will pass from Capt. Charles G. Darrell to Capt. George Thomas Phelps.

Darrell has commanded NORDA since it was established in 1976.

The change-of-command ceremonies will be in building 1200 at NSTL, beginning at 10 a.m.

Guest of honor will be the Chief of Naval Research, Rear Adm. A.J. Baciocco Jr.

NORDA is a field activity of the Chief of Naval Research which operates as the primary Navy focal point for conducting and sponsoring Navy-related ocean research and applied technology.

Phelps, presently assigned as surface operations officer for the commander of Cruiser Destroyer Group 12, graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1958 with a BS degree in chemistry. He obtained a master's degree in oceanography in 1967 from the Naval Postgraduate School and in 1970, a PhD in oceanography from Oregon State University.

He entered the Navy in 1958 as an ensign and was assigned as combat information center officer aboard the Destroyer Escort USS Domato (DDE 871). In 1961, he was assigned to the U.S. Naval Academy as a chemistry instructor.

Sea assignments brought him duty aboard the USS Hibgee (DD906) as executive officer, and aboard the USS Rexburg (EPF 855) and the USS Hollister (DD788) as commanding officer. From 1974 until his current assignment in 1978, he was a naval advisor to the supreme allied commander of the Atlantic Research Center-NATO command in LaSpezia, Italy.

Darrell will be reassigned to the Naval Sea Systems Command headquarters as director of the logistic support officer in the Ship Systems Directorate.

He was born in Middletown, Ohio, NAVY-Page 10A

R.D. 'Bob' Rippeto, president of Gulf Coast Securities, Inc. of Bay St. Louis and president of Bay Contractors Inc. of Diamondhead, gave himself up to the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Sunday on charges of 'false pretense.' He was released on $1,500 bond.

The charges stem from indictments, on Nov. 26, by the Hancock County Grand Jury in an investigation of emergency repairs authorized by the County School Board at Gulfview Elementary School in Lakeshore after a tornado struck the school in May.

The indictment states Rippeto did 'cheat and defraud the Hancock County

Local reappraisal program on schedule

Bay St. Louis listing, measuring completed

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors took aerial photography bids for the Hancock County reappraisal program under advisement Monday morning.

Bids for aerial photography work of the entire county were received from: —Southern Resources Mapping Company of Greensborough, Ala. for $23,519.40;

—Map Technique of Jackson for $34,955;

—Gulf Coast Aerial Mapping of Baton Rouge for $22,550;

—Micheal Baker of Jackson for $25,700;

Edward D. Murtagh Jr., county assessor and tax collector, said, 'The county has never had a base map. An aerial photography map is a must for making this base map.'

Currently the mapping department is compiling a complete set of property descriptions for land parcels throughout the entire county.

All property, lots and platted boundaries will be located on the base map when the map is completed.

James Cheatham, mapping supervisor and consultant for the county, said, 'The aerial map will be on the scale of one-inch equals 100 feet in urban areas and one-inch equals 400 feet in the rural areas.'

Cheatham said the aerial map will reveal improvements which could now go unnoticed by field personnel and also show the exact changes in rivers and bayous.

Murtagh said the maps must be photographed aerially within a six-week period from the end of December to the first week in February due to loss of ground cover.

Cheatham said a recommendation on the choice of the aerial photography company will be made before the next supervisors' meeting.

Murtagh said, 'I think the reappraisal program is just about exactly on time.'

Murtagh said the program faces a 1982 deadline.

'If reappraisal is not completed by that time, then the State Tax Commission will not allow taxation in 1982,' the assessor said.

Murtagh continued, 'The program is just beginning.'

'Currently we are measuring and listing improvements in the platted areas in the county. We have finished Bay St. Louis and are now in Bayside Park,' he reported.

Murtagh said approximately 3,000 improvements (constructions enhancing land value) have been measured and listed on transfer cards out of 11,000 known improvements in platted areas and 3,000 in non-platted areas.

The measurements are being conducted by a team of four women from the assessor's office.

Murtagh said the team was trained by representatives of the State Tax Equalization Division based in Jackson during a three-day July classroom program in Bay St. Louis followed by two weeks of actual experience in the field.

City council grants store special parking privileges

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Council, by a split vote Tuesday night granted special customer parking privileges in front of a new liquor store on North Beach Boulevard.

Maurice Colly, a local developer, requested that the council restrict parking for customers only from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. in front of his building located at the corner of North Beach Boulevard and State Street.

Council President Pete Benvenuti

and Council member Harry Farve voted against the action.

Benvenuti said, 'I appreciate the improvements Mr. Colly has made on Beach Boulevard, but I do not believe in giving any special privileges to any person for parking on the beach.'

'The situation (lack of parking space) was there,' Benvenuti stated, indicating 'the situation existed before renovation of the liquor store building and added, 'I cannot see reserving any parking for any business or individual.'

Councilman James Thrifley, whose district the business is located said, 'I think it is a good request.'

Farve noted, 'I think we could get in some serious problems if we establish a tow-away zone on Beach Boulevard. I do not see where we can go along with it.'

Thrifley stated, 'The idea is not to interfere with regular hours. Mr. Colly contacted other property owners and no one objected to the request.'

Council members Wilmer Seymour and Fred Wagner supported the request and the motion passed by a 3-2 vote.

City Attorney Joseph Gex reported he had checked the State Statutes and said the city council had authority to establish the parking restrictions.

City council ponders Union Street center

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis City Council was urged to acquire the old Debators Association home for a city Civic Center.

Geraldine Lang, spokesman for the Hancock County Concerned Citizens, appeared before the council Tuesday night requesting the city to look into the matter.

Lang said, 'I think it is in the best interest of the City to have a civic center. The Debators Association wants to sell their home. It would be ideal and has plenty of parking space.'

The Debating Benevolent Association of Bay St. Louis' property has a building on Union Street near the Louisville and Nashville Railroad depot.

Lang was asked to get more detailed information on the size of building and property for the council to study.

A group spokesman reported the property has been appraised at $15,500 and the association is asking $50,000, but Lang was sure the city could 'work something out.'

Mayor Larry Bennett and council members all indicated they would like to further study the request for a civic center and asked Lang to return to their next meeting.

Waveland aldermen can beach dumpsters

By BRENT MACKEY

The Waveland Board of Aldermen unanimously voted Tuesday night to discontinue a service contract for three dumpsters located on South Beach Boulevard.

The board's action resulted from apparent 'abuse' from citizens of Waveland and other neighboring communities.

Dorothy Sutton of Waveland addressed the board at a scheduled meeting at Waveland City Hall and reported, "People do not use, they abuse the dumpsters."

Sutton said the dumpsters have become an 'eyesore' in the community.

"I watched a man drive up in a pickup truck with all kinds of loose junk in the back. It was a real windy day. Every shovel-full of junk he attempted to put into the dumpster blew all over the beach," Sutton stated.

Sutton mentioned incidences of people throwing old couches and mattresses into the dumpsters until they were 'overflowing.'

Paul Montjoy, president of Gulf Coast Waste and Disposal, Inc. of Bay St. Louis said Wednesday morning, "The City of Waveland contracted with us approximately two years ago to place the dumpsters on the beach road."

"The dumpsters were picked up seven days a week during the summer and three days a week during the winter," Montjoy explained.

Mayor John Longo of Waveland said at the Tuesday night meeting, "We are the only city which gives free garbage pick-up and people have always been abusing it."

"Maybe people will become more conscientious if we take the dumpsters out for a couple of months," he added.

Montjoy said Wednesday, "I cannot disagree with the board at all."

"I feel the problem is created by a very few people, but the question is how to serve the majority of the people," he added.

In other business, at the 7:30 p.m. meeting, the board:

—Took under advisement a recommendation from Middletown Rehabilitation Project Engineers Lewis-Eaton Partnership of Jackson to demolish eight homes in the Middletown area declared health and safety hazards based on Federal Housing and Urban Development codes. The addresses of the houses were advertised recently in The Sea Coast Echo;

—Authorized a second payment of $39,740 to R & T Co. for work on the Middletown Park. Alderman Barbara Rappold said Wednesday she did not know the company's office location;

—Authorized a final $15,599 payment to Lewis-Eaton Partnership on a contract established in 1972 for a sewerage treatment collection project;

—Authorized Lewis-Eaton to proceed with permitting, surveying and design of a 20-foot permanent easement from the Waveland Avenue, along the north side of US-90 to Hwy. 603;

—Authorized Lewis-Eaton to survey an approximate one-fourth acre lot behind Our Shopping Center for construction of a city water tank;

—Authorized a change of contract with Southland Enterprises of Gulfport for installing sewer pipe along the south side of US-90 from a sewer cross-over near Nicholson Ave. Engineer Ray Eaton said the project will proceed west as far as funds allow and as long as easements are available.

Ole Miss writing will guidelines for retarded

Parents of mentally retarded people don't have adequate legal guidelines to use in drawing up a will or trust specially geared to the needs of their mentally retarded children, say two University of Mississippi law professors.

"Throughout the country, parents of mentally retarded children or their attorneys must sort through bewildering laws and legal entanglements to find the best way to leave property to these children," said Dr. Don Fruge and Dr.

Karen Green of Ole Miss.

Fruge, a professor of law at Ole Miss, and Green assistant professor of law, are working to develop the country's first complete legal text on estate planning for the mentally retarded.

"The project was originated by the Lafayette County Association for Retarded Citizens in Oxford, and is a cooperative effort of its members, the Mississippi Department of Mental Health and the Ole Miss Law Center," a university spokesman said recently.

"Many parents don't know in what direction to go," Fruge explained.

"They don't know how to use trusts, life insurance and other legal instruments to take care of retarded citizens," he added.

The work is funded by a grant from University Affiliated Programs through the Mississippi Department of Mental Health, Division of Mental Retardation. The grant is from the Office of Human Development of the U.S. Department of Health and Welfare.

We think it was a very good idea by the Chamber of Commerce to provide ribbons for the employees of our local stores.

The ribbons promote shopping at home, which is something we should try and do as much as possible.

A dollar spent at home turns over many times.

We are happy to see our Governor William Winter's support for an Anti-Shoplifting Campaign for the month of December in Mississippi.

As you all know the Mississippi Gulf Coast Ad Club has initiated a campaign in our area which started last month.

We are happy to see the support this campaign is being given in Gulf Coast Newspapers, television, radio, billboards and other media.

Shoplifting is effecting our lives more and more each day by way of our pocketbooks.

We need to support our local merchants in curbing this crime.

We have noted in the latest Grand Jury report a repetition of previous reports in regard to jail conditions in Hancock County.

Because of the conditions of the county jail, the Grand Jury stated that a new facility should be 'a very high priority need.'

The report recommends the County Board of Supervisors present a bond issue to a responsible voting citizenry for approval, as soon as possible.

Since the beginning of 1980 we have noted more interest by our elected officials in the jail problems in our county.

We hope the local citizenry will help our officials acquire this much needed facility.

During a recent drive down US-90 and Hwy. 607, we noted the beautiful Fall colors in the woods.

We realize we do not have as many colorful fall trees, but the ones we have are very beautiful with the brown cypress in background.

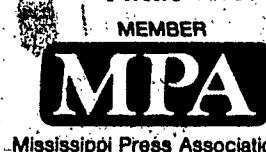

The flat land makes it harder for us to see the beauty, as in the mountains, but we do have Fall color.

SIGNS ANTI-SHOPLIFTING PROCLAMATION — Mississippi Governor William Winter signs a proclamation declaring December anti-shoplifting month statewide as, from left, Mississippi Retail Merchants Association Executive Vice President Clay D. Cooley of Jackson, Shoplifting Committee Chairman Al Benton of Itney Jungle in Jackson and Association President John C. Wellons Jr. of The Rankin Co. of Columbia participate in the recent event.

News media, merchants, governor mount anti-shoplifting campaign

Mississippi's newspapers, radio and television stations, Governor William Winter, The Mississippi Gulf Coast Advertising Club, and the Mississippi Retail Merchants Association are joining forces with Mississippi retailers this month to launch a massive anti-shoplifting campaign.

"Shoplifting is of great concern to Mississippi retailers because the honest consumers ultimately bear the brunt of the cost," explains John Wellons, President of the Mississippi Retail Merchants Association, which is spearheading this drive. "Our primary objective is to educate the public through this intensive four-week campaign, and, hopefully, as a result to decrease the incidences of shoplifting."

Concerned by the fact that shoplifting, Mississippi's most widespread monetary crime, results in 150 million dollars annually in loss to retailers which is passed on directly to the consumer in the form of price increases, Governor Winter signed a Proclamation on November 19, stating "...because of the need for such a campaign, the State of Mississippi, working with retailers through the Mississippi Retail Merchants Association, recognized the seriousness of the problem ... I, William Winter, Governor of the State of Mississippi, do hereby proclaim the Month of December, 1980, as Shoplifting

Prevention Month."

December is the peak of the Christmas shopping season. Stores are packed with last minute shoppers. Mingling with these crowds are those persons who do not pay at all, risking arrest and prison terms.

"Education is the key word," explains Wellons. "There is no shoplifter stereotype - they come in all ages, from all walks of life, and from all income brackets. There are four basic classifications: juveniles, amateurs, professionals, and kleptomaniacs. More than sixty-five percent of shoplifters are amateurs and juveniles - people who believe that the loss of merchandise will never be noticed, who think that stealing from a big company with lots of money is not really stealing at all, or who feel that, even if they are caught, it is no big deal. This rationale is completely wrong. This sixty-five percent is the group we hope to reach with our campaign."

"Shoplifting is a national tragedy, the tragedy of almost 200 thousand adults and youngsters apprehended annually as store thieves who will carry a criminal record for the rest of their lives," explains Al Benton of Itney Jungle and chairman of the MRMA Shoplifting Committee. "Few persons know that shoplifting is the legal equivalent of stealing, and offenders are sentenced accordingly. For example, the maximum penalty for the first offense theft of any item less than $100.00 in value is $300.00 and/or six months in jail; a second offense is punishable by a $500.00 fine and/or one year in jail as are subsequent offenses. The theft of any item valued at more than $100.00 constitutes a felony, and carries a sentence not exceeding five years in the state penitentiary and/or a $1,000.00 fine.

"The effect on the consumer's pocketbook is devastating," Benton continues. "Nationally, the loss to retailers through shoplifting is in excess of eight billion dollars annually. The loss in Mississippi, alone, is staggering: an increase from 60 million dollars in 1968 to 150 million dollars in 1978. Obviously, the merchant can absorb, neither these losses, nor the cost of maintaining large security forces and numerous crime detection devices. If price increases due to retail theft were equally distributed among adults in the United States, it would amount to $137.00 per person. So, it becomes clear that the real victims of store thieves are consumers. In other words, everybody."

"The Mississippi Retail Merchants Association is launching this campaign," says Wellons, "not only to aid the Mississippi retailers, but also to take a positive step towards saving consumer dollars in these days of tight money and inflation."

Local minister cites 'small animal crises'

Dear Sir:
We are facing a small animal crisis in Hancock County. The only small animal shelter we have will soon be torn down.

I understand that we have a Hancock Animal Control Commission which is jointly sponsored by the county, Bay St. Louis, and Waveland. I also understand that there is available an abandoned airport site which is away from any residences.

I urge the Animal Control Commission to act on this matter as soon as possible.

Very truly yours,
Charles R. Johnson

Bay resident cites benefits of proposed animal shelter

Dear Editor:
It is with great pleasure that the Humane Society of Waveland and Bay Saint Louis has announced they have found a suitable location for an animal shelter.

This place is far from any residential section and near other animal enclosures: cow barns and pastures and horse-pastures. This would provide a safe and supervised place for stray dogs and cats.

These lost, hungry, sick and often infected animals who roam our streets and are a threat to children and their pets would be taken care of.

It is heartening to know that an overwhelming majority of citizens are in favor of this location for a small animal shelter.

The Mayor of Bay St. Louis and the Mayor of Waveland are pleased with this site and are anxious to have the dangerous situation of wild and often sick animals off our streets and cared for in a humane way.

This would be a disposal place for unwanted animals, and a place for adoption for people wanting pets.

However, in spite of the obvious benefits to both communities, there are a few voices raised against this project for one reason or another. The Society hopes to convince these people of the advantages which will be in their favor as well as the majority who favor it.

Sincerely,
Mr. John E. Isom

Bay St. Louis resident praises local A&P store manager

Dear Editor:
It has come to my attention that Mr. Ronnie Slocum, manager of A&P in Bay St. Louis is being transferred and I feel as if I must take this opportunity to say a word about this gentleman.

It has been to Bay St. Louis' advantage to have had him here. I am sure that all who knew him can vouch for this.

He has been pleasant and ac-

Reader 'amazed' at Waveland mayor's statements about wastewater group

Dear Sir:
I am concerned and more than a little amazed by the statement in the last paragraph of the article on the Regional Wastewater Plan in the Echo edition of November 30 which reads in part: Longo reported, "Some figures already discussed by the regional authority run as high as $30 per month per household in additional costs."

As reported by the wastewater authority in public meetings completed in October the estimates of average annual household cost increases for regional program financing, in 1980 dollars, assuming the following:

- (1) 63,400 connections to component sewer systems 1978
- (2) Growth in connections equal to BEAS population forecasts
- (3) Construction schedule completion mid 1986
- (4) Present portion of the total sewage household bill for sewage treatment alone to be $3 per household would be:
1981 - $1.60; 1982 - $4.10; 1983 - $4.30; 1984 - $6.20; 1985 - $7.80; 1986 - $8.20 and 1987 - $8.20.

Yours truly,
William P. Hilliker

New Orleans readers say proposed animal shelter site is 'wonderful'

Dear Sir:
We are frequent visitors - and potential home owners - of Bay St.

Louis and Waveland. We have been reading about the efforts of the governments of the cities and county to have a decent, well-kept animal shelter on the abandoned airstrip in Bay St. Louis and we think it is a wonderful idea and we are all for it.

So many people we know who visit here from New Orleans were shocked by the poor system of animal control we find here.

This new shelter should be the answer and we are happy the time has come. Good luck to all concerned in carrying out this effort.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Schmidt

Long Beach resident 'amused' by Hancock Grand Jury indictments

Dear Editor:
With amusement I have read the article in the newspaper about the Hancock County officials being indicted. These people make Washington, D.C. look like a lamb.

What doesn't amuse me is that it is my tax money. I would prefer my money to be used legally and for the benefit of the whole county, especially for the school system, not for these individuals and their friends.

CARE official lauds press for publicity of programs

Dear Editor:
During this holiday season we want to thank the American press for its exceptional job of informing the public about CARE's self-help, feeding and disaster aid programs for the destitute in developing nations. Without your help we would not have received the generous financial support from the public which is so vital to CARE's existence.

This year inflation and an unprecedented number of disasters cut sharply into our funds for development programs. So we must appeal for even more support.

CARE conducts self-help development programs in 35 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East.

To help needy people work their way out of poverty, CARE supplies materials, equipment and know-how to build schools, clean water systems, clinics and health centers.

Income-generating cottage industries are set up. Through CARE-MEDICO, health workers, physicians and nurses are trained.

Another thing that doesn't amuse me is that the people of Hancock County have not made these men resign.

Also if the District Attorney doesn't file crime action, as the Grand Jury recommended, against these men, he should be made to resign.

If the laws are not enforced, what good are they for our protection.

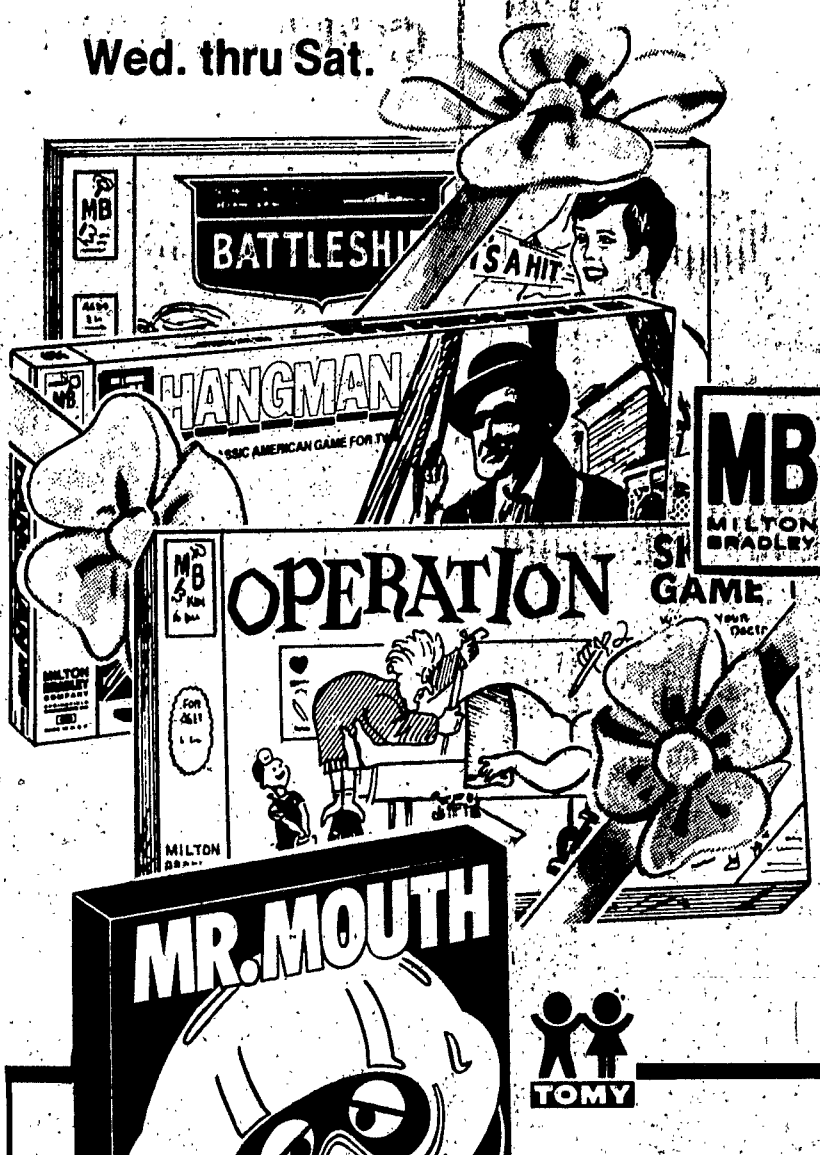

Jean Halterlein

Long Beach

CARE provides food for over 30 million people, mostly children. Included are families receiving food-for-work through development projects, such as irrigation and reforestation to increase local agricultural production. Donations are supplemented by U.S. Food-for-Peace commodities and contributions from domestic and foreign governments. This enabled CARE to stretch each dollar donated in the last fiscal year to provide $6.73 worth of aid. Out of every dollar of support, contributions both in cash and in-kind, 95 cents is spent directly on programs.

Again, our heartfelt thanks for your past support. Our staff members across the country and around the world join me in sending you and your staff warmest season's greetings and best wishes for the New Year.

Sincerely,
Philip Johnston

'Tush' to debut Sunday night on local cable TV

Tush, the SuperStation's new weekly comedy hour, will make a special holiday debut Sunday 6-7 p.m., Dec. 7, on WTBS, Hancock Community Cable Channel. The unique show is a fresh and funny look at the Christmas holidays - what they mean to people and how the season affects them.

Produced by WTBS and starring popular SuperStation funnyman Bill Tush, along with a riotous repertory group and special guest stars, Tush! begins its regular weekly season 6-7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 28.

For those who hold holiday humor close to their hearts, the debut of Tush! offers a potpourri of slapstick parodies of the holiday season, with bits that include killer elves, crass commercialism, the irreverent evangelist talk-show host Tammy Jean, a cynical Santa Claus, and much more. Topping off the hour is musical guest star Slim Whitman, performing some of the hit songs that have made him a household word in cable homes across America.

The pioneer production of the WTBS Entertainment Department, Tush! is a view of the world through the world of Bill Tush; a strange and hilarious land of satire, fantasy, music, reality and smatterings of social relevance. For the regular season beginning Dec. 28, Bill's life revolves around his contacts with the friends and neighbors (both real and imagined) who people his world. Personalities popping up from time to time include the lovable Homer Black, former business magnate turned Skid Row bum; Bill's psychotic psychiatrist Dr. Cash; Uncle Albert, host of the science program "Fun With Fissics" along with his nuclear puppet, Friendly Atom; the snappy Bulgatizian music duo, Ada and Ira Fromp; the misguided Billy Sol Estes Student Council and rave female background vocalists, the incredible Tushettes, to name only a few.

In addition to being the name of the show and the name of the star, Tush! also represents the brilliant collection of Atlanta-based talents from all over the U.S. and Canada who write, act and produce the program. Their experience ranges from comic and personality leads on national and local tv to leading and supporting roles in first-run films, radio, commercials, and national-local hit plays, professional comedy, music, advertising and journalistic writing and years of producing and directing for national tv programs.

Bill Tush, who joined the SuperStation in its infancy, has shown signs of comic roots throughout his broadcasting career. While acting as News Director for WTBS (formerly WTG), his concept for humorous news led to the development of the nationally popular "7 Update Early in the Morning," a side-splitting blend of late-night hijinks, satire, fact and fantasy, all held together by a barely recognizable straight news format. The fans he has generated across the continent will no doubt be delighted by this clever, creative addition to the television comedy scene!

New Gulf Islands manager announced

The National Park Service recently appointed W.P. (Ping) Crawford as park manager at Gulf Islands National Seashore in Miss.

Crawford, 44, currently superintendent of Fort Sumter National Monument at Charleston, S.C., will report to his new post Dec. 26, succeeding Noel J. Pachta, who was named superintendent of Virgin Islands National Park last July.

Paul Winegar of the Park Service said, "As manager of the national seashore's Mississippi district, Crawford will be responsible for daily operations of a park which includes three Gulf Coast barrier islands along with mainland visitor and administrative facilities at Ocean Springs."

An 18-year park service veteran, Crawford began his career as a park ranger at White Sands National Monument, N.M., in 1962.

Later assignments included park ranger at Cape Cod National Seashore, Mass., and management assistant at Ellis Island which is part of the Statue of Liberty National Monument in New York.

Early in 1970, he was appointed superintendent of Ocmulgee National Monument at Macon, Ga., where he served for six years before being named superintendent at Fort Sumter.

The son of a U.S. Army Colonel, Crawford was born at Charlevoix, Mich., and attended schools throughout the U.S. and Europe. He graduated from Colorado State University in 1959 with a bachelor's degree in biological science.

He and his wife, Judy Brose Crawford, have two adult children.

SuperStation WTBS is the place to gather the family this Christmas season for the very brightest in holiday entertainment. Beginning Monday, December 22 at 8:00 PM (ET) enjoy THE BELLS OF SAINT MARY'S starring Ingrid Bergman and Bing Crosby. It's a touching story of a priest's and nun's efforts to entice a wealthy skinflint into donating money to rebuild a failing parochial school.

Bay native named Editor-of-the-Year

By WAYNE DUCOMB, JR.
A Bay St. Louis native was named Editor of the Year by the American Petroleum Institute at its annual meeting in San Francisco, Calif.
Julia Delph, 30, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Octave Delph of Bay St. Louis, was honored in the newspaper letter category as editor of the Exxon Co.-U.S.A.'s newsletter, 'Issues in Review.' An institute spokesman said recently, "Editor-of-the-Year" awards were presented to editors of three petroleum industry publications during the American Petroleum Institute's annual meeting.

UNO invites public to Madrigal Dinners

The University of New Orleans will have its first Madrigal Dinners - A Christmas Celebration of Food, Merriment and Song on Friday and Saturday, December 12 and 13, in the UNO University Center.
A UNO spokesman reports, "Recreating a Christmas banquet in Elizabethan England, each night's program will begin at 6:30 p.m. with wassail; dinner and entertainment will begin at 7 p.m."
"The 17-member UNO Chamber Singers, under the direction of Gerald Sousa, will perform several madrigals, songs written for small choral groups, while dressed in traditional period costumes as knights and ladies of the court," the spokesman said. Songs will include traditional Christmas carols such as Franz Gruber's 'Silent Night' and 'Good King, Wenceslaus' as well as less popularized songs like 'Angelus ad Virginem' (14th Century English) and 'Riu, Riu, Chiu' (16th Century Spanish).

"Other entertainers will be court jester Evi Seidman, mimes Maria Ramer and Tata Andres; clowns Cliff Schenayder and Charmaine Marino; and magicians Moonbean and James Crossman. Christopher Caton will act as lord of the manor and master of ceremonies. Music will be provided by the UNO Brass and Wind Ensemble," the spokesman noted.

Costume designer for the program is Bernadette Klotz, assisted by Alexis Stevens. David Heil, director of UNO Food Services, is food coordinator.
Included on the gala dinner menu will be Cornish game hens, wild rice dressing, and the traditional flaming figgy (plum) pudding.

Tickets for each program, both of which are open to the public, are $12.50 a person, including tax.
For further information, call the UNO Student Activities Board, 283-0349.

Gift Ideas

Give and Ye Shall Receive
"Tis better to give than receive" - but it's still a pleasure to receive!
Some gift givers who choose a camera as a holiday present this year will receive a bonus from the manufacturer: a special rebate.

A gift that's twice-blessed: give a camera, get a rebate!

A $25 rebate is being offered on the purchase of the Minolta XG-1 35mm single-lens-reflex (SLR) camera. Buyers can get a rebate coupon at the photo dealer where they purchased the XG-1.

The Minolta XG-1, with automatic electronic technology, makes it possible for first-time camera users to achieve professional results simply by focusing and shooting.

The awards, sponsored by API, honored editors of company magazines, newspapers, and newsletters for excellence in presenting the public affairs issues of the industry," the spokesman explained.

Other winners this year were Norman V. Richards in the magazine category as editor of 'Marathon World' and June Eppink in the newspaper category as editor of 'Sohio News.'

The institute spokesman noted awards were presented at the annual meeting by Jerry McAfee, Chairman and chief executive officer of Gulf Oil Corp., at a luncheon meeting in the Fairmont Hotel.

Delph was employed by Exxon three years as a media relations representative in Houston, Tex., and was appointed editor of the company's newsletter in 1979.

She was previously employed in the Public Relations Department of Middle South Utilities, Inc. in New Orleans. Delph is a graduate of the former St. Joseph's Academy in Bay St. Louis.

She received a B.A. degree from the University of Mississippi in Oxford and a M.A. degree in English Literature from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

TOOLS TO DO THE JOB RIGHT

As a member of the growing army of do-it-yourselfers, you'll want to do the job right - right now. But if you have to spend time hunting down the tools - the screwdriver in the kitchen, the saw in the garage, the pliers in the car - that enthusiasm may wane. You may wind up putting off today what you may not even do tomorrow.
Before you start, check out your arsenal of tools. Do you have everything you need to do the job properly and safely? If not, visit your hardware store for help on the proper tools for the job. Sometimes one tool does many jobs. An example is the Weller Mini-Shop and its vast array of accessories. It's one of the tools by Cooper the Toolmaker, which includes Crescent, Lufkin measuring tools, Nicholson saws and files, and Plumb hammers and axes.

To the Weller Mini-Shop, you can attach everything from a drill bit and polishing brush to sanders and grinders for doing fine shop work.

There are tricks to the trade that make any job easier and safer. Example: a wood screw turns smoothly if the threads are first rubbed with soap, and if the screwdriver has an extra-large, non-slip handle like the Cushion Grip by Crescent.

USM board finds name for nursing building

The Board of Trustees for State Institutions of Higher Learning recently approved naming the University of Southern Mississippi's nursing building in Hattiesburg in honor of the nursing school's founder and retiring dean Dr. Elizabeth Catherine Harkins, RSM.

The decision for the new nursing structure to become the Elizabeth Catherine Harkins School of Nursing Building was made at a recent Board of Trustees meeting and announced by USM President Aubrey K. Lucas. A date for formal dedication ceremonies was not set.

Dean Harkins, scheduled to retire from USM Dec. 31, established the nursing baccalaureate program in 1966 and was appointed the first dean of the School of Nursing. Continuing education and master's programs were later added by Dr. Harkins to the nursing curriculum and in 1976 the Center for Nursing was created.

Friends and colleagues are invited to attend a dinner banquet for Dr. Harkins Dec. 13 at Peddler's Inn. The event is sponsored by the School of Nursing Faculty Council at USM.

Dr. Harkins has been recognized as a leader in the promotion of quality nursing throughout the state and national and has continued to stand for progress in nursing and elevation of the profession through quality education. In view of her many accomplishments the USM Foundation has established a scholarship fund for contributions to be made in her honor.

insurance insight

Less Costly Car Insurance

Many insurance companies now offer lower rates on many makes and models of automobiles, both domestic and foreign.

Before such "make and model" programs were established, collision and comprehensive auto insurance rates for most insurance companies were based on the new car price, age of car, garaging territory, use of car, class of driver and other factors.

With the introduction of new rating programs, a model's actual loss experience has been included. This experience takes into account additional factors not part of the previous rating system. These factors include damageability, repairability and theft differences by model of automobile.

Allstate Insurance Company has had what it calls a "Make and Model Experience Rating Program" in effect since 1976. Allstate has modified collision and comprehensive auto insurance rates on many 1974-1981 cars in order to take into account their higher or lower cost of repairability, ease of servicing and crashworthiness. The program is used in addition to traditional rating factors.

Data underlying make and model programs does not indicate what causes the experience to be better or worse on a particular model, but simply that the model is better or worse than average in its market class in terms of total comprehensive and collision experience.

Each insurance company offering make and model premium reductions has a slightly different method for deciding upon the reduction it offers. Under Allstate's program, for example, rates for collision and comprehensive coverages are based in part on the actual loss experience of each model. Presently, Allstate is giving reductions of approximately 10 to 30 percent on 29 models of 1979 and 1980 cars. Two models with very good loss experience receive a reduction of up to 45 percent.

Models with actual loss experience worse than average receive an increase of approximately 10 to 30 percent.

Veterans taking flight training or correspondence courses under the GI Bill must pay a larger share of the cost under legislation effective in October.

But the low cost VA loans of up to $2,500 are now available to veterans in flight training. Both provisions were part of "The Education and Rehabilitation Amendments of 1980."

The Congressional action, approved by the President on October 17, also increased GI Bill education allowances.

A VA spokesman said, "Students who enroll in correspondence programs after Sept. 1, 1980, may receive 70 percent of the total charges for correspondence training from the Veterans Administration."

"Those in flight training are reimbursed 60 percent of the costs. Those enrolled in either program on Sept. 1, 1980, or earlier will continue to get 90 percent of the total throughout the course provided the training is continuous and part of the same program of education," the spokesman explained.

Flight training continues to be restricted to eligible veterans taking an approved course of flight training generally accepted as necessary to attain a recognized vocational objective in the aviation field. Flight students also must meet physical qualifications, and they must have earned a private pilot's license," the spokesman explained.

"Most veterans who completed normal tours of military duty are eligible for 45 months of training. For correspondence students, remaining eligibility is reduced one month each time they receive a payment equal to 70 percent of the dollar amount they would have received had they been enrolled in classroom training. This amount is $327 between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31 increasing to $342 on Jan. 1, 1981," the spokesman stated.

"Flight students use up a month of eligibility for each $302 used between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31, and after Jan. 1 the amount becomes $317 per month," the spokesman added.

Scoliosis workshop slated in Gulfport

As part of a national program, the Gulf Coast Easter Seal Society is sponsoring a Scoliosis Screening Workshop for all interested parents, teachers and school nurses in the Gulf Coast area.

The workshop will be Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. in the meeting room of the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce.

Scoliosis, the medical term for the sideways curvature of the spine, can be corrected if detected early.

Parents, teachers, doctors and nurses can watch for signs of this back problem especially in school children from five to 15 years of age.

The workshop's primary goal is public education. By instructing participants in how to test for scoliosis, the society hopes to make communities more aware of the problem and the importance of early detection through a school screening program.

Dr. William Hopper of the Gulf Coast Orthopedic Clinic will serve as Coast Medical Coordinator for the Scoliosis Screening and will be the main speaker at the workshop.

Lorain Gilbert, physical therapist at Gulfport Memorial Hospital will also be present to demonstrate the screening techniques.

In other business, the Council heard from Joe Brown III, of Brown Engineers, Inc. of Gulfport who reported a 1979 Small Cities Project was complete with exception of one item on his 'punch list.'

Brown said, "A little work still has to be done on a man hole on St. John Street, but everything else as far as I know was completed."

"The advertisement requesting residents who may have suffered any damages had been run in the newspaper and so far no one has received any complaints," he added.

The 1979 Small Cities Project was for the updating water and sewer service in the 500 blocks of deMontluzin, State, Main, St. John and Easterbrook Streets.

Brown said the deadline for complaints is Dec. 11, which may be filed at the mayor's office.

The council authorized a final payment at Southland Enterprises of Gulfport, contractors for the street work, to be made after the deadline passed. No complaints were received before and also completion of the one punch list item on the engineer's report.

Mayor Larry Bennett requested authority to purchase approximately 80 tons of asphalt for the overlay of 'five corners,' and funds were approved by the Council.

The heavily traveled intersections are at Touline, Hancock, Blaise, Railroad and Union Streets.

The council also approved repairing a cave-in in the 100 Block of Court Street by the contractor of record.

The city leaders also discussed methods to dispose of several old vehicles owned by the city and a large pile of scrap metal.

The items were declared surplus by the council and the City Clerk Edward Favre was authorized to advertise the items as surplus.

Ronnie Murray, administrator for the Small Cities Project suggested the council seek a proposal from Moore and Powell, Certified Public Accountants of Bay St. Louis, to do an audit of the 1979 Small Cities Project as it nears completion. The suggestion was authorized.

In regard to the small cities project, the council approved a change order for a contractor in the amount of $2,500, which will be available from a Federal grant.

Murray said, "The project did not use all the funds and the grant would cover the change order."

Murray also mentioned the city may recover some monies spent on easements and appraisals.

Council authorized a request for the monies spent by the city for easements and appraisals.

Murray also reported a study of the Old Spanish Trail and Washington Street Intersection was underway and should be completed by January. The Council requested the study last month.

Charles Hirshtus, spokesman for Spanish Acres residents said he was 'elated' about several reports by the Council.

Gex reported he set a meeting with the Chiniche family who owns property adjacent to Spanish Acres.

The property could be used as a secondary exit route and a playground for the subdivision.

The council members indicated they would take a look at the price the owners wanted and authorized the clerk have an appraisal conducted of the land.

Hirshtus stated, "I take this as meaning the council is in favor of purchasing the property," and 'if it is feasible' was given the land.

Gex said he would check a privilege license for a business operating in the subdivision against regulation.

Hirshtus allowed, "They even had an advertisement in the classified section of the newspaper."

In a discussion of the Webb Street dump Bennett said a spokesman for the State Board of Health reported a second inspection had been made of the area.

Bennett said, "The State Board of Health made a second inspection and noted some effort by the owner to clean it up. Another inspection is to take place after the first of the year and if the improvements have not continued, it will be turned over to the city attorney."

A report regarding a Spanish Acres resident's request for a study of the elevation of drainage ditches in the subdivision will be discussed at the next regular meeting of the council.

The council also authorized purchasing materials for an extension of water lines on Eighth Street. The work will be undertaken with city crews.

The council recessed until 5 p.m. Monday for a meeting with Donald J. Benson, project director of the Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Program and service contract.

"We are one of the few counties in Mississippi conducting our own tax reappraisal," Murtagh said.

"We may save the county as much as $800,000 with our own in-house reappraisal program," he added.

Murtagh said, "In addition to saving the county money, the program has also enabled us to benefit the community."

He stated the assessor's office has hired six formerly unemployed local residents to assist in the both the mapping and the reappraisal offices. Four are working in the field and two are office mapping personnel.

Murtagh said the mapping and reappraisal office also encourages purchasing equipment from companies within the community.

He explained that Hancock County will have trained personnel capable of dealing with annual reappraisals in future years.

"Other counties who have hired an outside organization to handle their initial reappraisal program will have to rehire someone else the next year since they won't be able to do it themselves," Murtagh stated.

He noted that Sarah Lusich, formerly a deputy assessor for the county, is currently a trainee in the mapping department which is supervised by Cheatham.

Murtagh said Lusich will be able to continue mapping work after the reappraisal program is finished and Cheatham has completed his work on the initial mapping.

Cheatham is currently a salaried county employee hired by the county to organize mapping while the county is involved in the reappraisal program.

Other employees of the county who have undergone job training include: Lou Wilkerson, deputy clerk and now office manager of the reappraisal program; Evon Ladner, deputy clerk; and Murtagh.

All three have passed a State Tax Commission course certifying them as appraisers.

According to Murtagh, the county must have two certified appraisers to meet the state commission's guidelines of one certified appraiser for every 5,000 homestead exemptions.

"Hancock county has 5,500 homestead exemptions," Murtagh said.

Also at the 9 a.m. supervisor's meeting in the Courthouse in Bay St. Louis, the board took several mapping equipment bids for the assessor's branch office in the Truett Building under advisement, which included:

—A quotation from Neely Reprographics of Jackson for $2,161;

—Incomplete bids from Huntoons Inc. of Gulfport, Dietzen Corp. of Metairie and Magnolia State School Products of Hattiesburg.

Murtagh said after the meeting, "Some of the companies bid on certain pieces of equipment and others did not. It makes it a lot harder to examine the bids."

In other business, the board:

—Accepted bids from Southern Fire Equipment Co., Inc. of Jackson for two 10-ounce red vinyl nylon salvage covers costing $201.20;

—Accepted Two Waterons floto pumps from Day Fire Equipment Co. of Clarksdale costing $1,374. One pump will be used for Clermont Harbor and the other for the East Hancock VFW;

—Accepted one Winco 4,000-watt generator costing $687 for Clermont Harbor;

—Accepted the resignation of Harrie Devine and appointed Tom Rawls as Commissioner of the Fire Protection Board of Diamondhead. Devine resigned because of business commitments; —Approved a notary bond for Linda Broussard of Bay St. Louis;

—Accepted a motion to release Shell Supply Co. from a contract expiring Nov. 17 concerning construction of state-aid roads;

—Accepted Lewis-Eaton Engineers in Jackson as the engineering company to represent Bay St. Louis in applications for wastewater treatment programs;

—Approved a new contract with Data Processing of Hattiesburg for printing county checks. The old contract expires Dec. 31;

—Authorized advertising for bids for a new or used bulldozer for District Four;

—Authorized construction by South Central Bell Telephone Co. to place a 45-foot, four-inch plastic pipe under Fenton Road and a 30-inch ditch from the intersection of Bayou La Terre and Fenton Roads to Dog Patch Road. County Engineer Lawrence Seal said the construction would not effect the road.

Grand Jury.....

presented to Rippetoe by Werlin Ladner Construction."

Rippetoe is the third person to be indicted by the grand jury.

Oris Ladner, school board representative of District One, was indicted and arrested last week on conflict of interest charges.

The indictment states Ladner was a salaried employee of Bay Contractors Inc. while simultaneously holding office on the school Board.

Ladner was paid $3,062 from Bay Contractors Inc. and was present when the school board approved payments to Bay Contractors, the indictment states.

John Ladner, election commissioner-elect of District Three, was charged with two counts of forgery for two checks totaling $4,840 made payable by the school board to Tommy Lane.

Both John and Oris Ladner were released on $1,500 bond last week.

The grand jury report recommended the District Attorney file suit against all the school board members and the school superintendent to obtain recovery of county funds wasted through their grossly negligent and or criminal activity.

The report states that the school board authorized payments totalling more than $380,000 for school repair work when less than $170,000 was covered by insurance from the tornado damage.

Things To Know About Buying A Mobile/Manufactured Home

By Lisa Drake
Consumer Affairs Advisor
Manufactured Housing Institute

The ravages of inflation have been felt by almost every family. Those families looking for adequate housing have been particularly frustrated by astronomical prices and staggering mortgage interest rates. In their search, many families are finding a happy solution: mobile/manufactured homes.

These homes, precision-made in a factory and transported to the site of the owner's choice, are not only more affordable than site-built housing but they are attractive, safe, and durable. Many families are pleasantly surprised when they look into the mobile/manufactured home market and find that these kinds of homes are hardly distinguishable from site-built houses and have all the amenities of the latter and, often, more.

As for pocketbook impact, the average sales price (including furnishings and appliances but without land) of a new mobile/manufactured home in 1979 was $17,700, according to the Manufactured Housing Institute, Washington, D.C. Contrast this with the average price of a new site-built house in 1979—$74,500 including land, but with no furnishings.

How does one go about buying a mobile/manufactured home? It's simple. Decide on your space needs, the site where you want to put the home and then see a retailer; they're in the yellow pages of the phone directory almost everywhere.

Now for some tips on buying:

The size of your mobile/manufactured home can range anywhere from 700 to over 2,000 square feet of living space depending on whether you choose a single-section home or a multi-section home. A typical single-section home will have 994 square feet of living space and be a 2 or 3 bedroom home with 1 1/2 or 2 baths. The average multi-section home will be comprised of 2 sections, that are built and transported separately to the home site and there joined together to form a single family residence. It will usually be a 3 bedroom, 2 bath home with about 1,500 square feet.

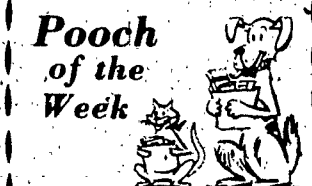

When considering the site for your mobile/manufactured home, be sure you know where the home is to be located before you make a firm decision on the home of your dreams.

Local conditions and regulations can limit the types and sizes of mobile/manufactured homes. As with any sort of structure you would wish to build, local zoning requirements must be considered and approval obtained. The retailer will know the local regulations and necessary procedures for moving a house into a particular area. Check with him before you buy.

Choose the retailer carefully. Ask for the names of former customers you may contact. A reputable firm will be pleased to furnish this information. Find out from these customers whether their homes are as good as they were represented to be and whether after-sale service, if needed, was readily forthcoming.

Don't buy from a retailer who won't quote the overall price of a home but says instead that it will cost so many dollars a month to buy. Also avoid a retailer who uses high-pressure sales tactics. The basic purchase price almost always includes the cost of transporting the home to the site of your choice within a prescribed area and setting it up for move-in. However, make sure this is included in the price and have it written into the sales contract.

News for Vets

Nearly 2.3 million veterans, 240,000 surviving spouses and more than 83,000 children of deceased veterans will receive larger Veterans Administration compensation checks in November, VA Administrator Max Cleland announced recently.

"The increase is the result of recent Congressional action signed into law Oct. 7 by President Jimmy Carter which hiked compensation rates by 13 percent for those rated from 10 to 40 percent disabled, and 14.3 percent for more seriously disabled veterans," Cleland explained. "Dependency and indemnity compensation rates for surviving spouses and children of veterans were increased by 14.3 percent also," he said.

"Effective on October 1, the new rates will be reflected in checks received Nov. 1," the VA administrator said. Cleland said the legislation made several other changes in VA benefits, including:
—an increase from $25,000 to $27,500 in the amount of a VA home loan guaranty for conventional homes, and from $17,500 to $20,000 for mobile home loans;

—payment of up to $5,000 for special housing adaptations for veterans with service connected blindness in both eyes (5-200 visual acuity or less), or with the loss, or loss of use, of both hands;
—provision of headstones or grave markers for a veteran's wife, husband or child buried in a state veterans' cemetery;
—improved pensions for military retirees whose retirement income falls below the poverty level.

"The legislation also provides relief for veterans who obtained mortgages during periods of high interest rates and later find they can obtain refinancing at lower rates," Cleland noted.

"Previously, VA loan guaranty eligibility required a mortgage be paid off and the property disposed of before a veteran was once again eligible for a VA mortgage guaranty. The new law permits refinancing of the existing mortgage and VA guarantee of the refinanced loan," he explained.

"The bill restricts benefits for veterans incarcerated in federal, state or local penal institutions on felony convictions. They will receive compensation or 'DIC' at a lesser rate after they have been confined for 60 days," Cleland said.

"The new compensation rates mean a veteran with a service connected disability rated at 10 percent will receive $54 a month, an increase from $48. The rate for a 50 percent disability goes from $255 monthly to $291, and a veteran with 100 percent disability will receive $1,016 monthly instead of the current $889," he cited.

"Additional amounts, providing a maximum monthly payment of $2,898 (up from $2,536) will be paid for specific severe disabilities," Cleland added. Cleland said a detailed explanation of the new rates will be included with the November compensation checks.

Two SSC players named to Coast all-star team

Juan Betanzos and Mark Lichtenstein, senior football players at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis have been named to the 1980 Gulf Coast Burger King All Star Football Team.

SSC Public Relations Director Brother Aquin Gauthier said Tuesday, "These two seniors were among 24 players selected from high schools along the Gulf Coast for this distinctive honor."

"They will be recognized at a special banquet Dec. 10," Aquin stated.

Head football coach Barry Jones of St. Stanislaus was nominated as Coach of the Year. Juan Betanzos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Betanzos of Mexico City, played safety on defense and was the place kicker for the Rock-A-Chaws this year.

He was named to the All Conference Team of the Pascagoula River Conference. Betanzos led the team in interceptions and was the second leading scorer for the Rocks. He set a school record for the number of field goals kicked and set the school record for the longest field goal (49 yards).

Mark Lichtenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Lichtenstein of Pearlman, was named to the All Conference Team as a defensive noseguard.

In addition, he was named the Most Valuable Defensive Lineman in the Pascagoula River Conference.

Lichtenstein was the leading tackler on the Rock-A-Chaw team with 163 tackles. He caused six fumbles and recovered five. He led the team in sacking the opposing quarterback with seven, and he caused three safeties.

Wildlife officers net 4,200 cases statewide

The figures are in for the first third of the fiscal year at the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation. Over 4,200 court cases were made by state wildlife enforcement officers of the Bureau of Fisheries and Wildlife for the period July through October. Citations include 1,136 boat and water safety violations and 3,113 fish and wildlife law infractions.

Officials noted many of those violations and infractions were cited in Hancock County.

Law Enforcement Chief Philip Strong said recently agency enforcement personnel are carrying out a major effort during the current deer season to stop poachers and others who shoot deer with the aid of a light at night.

"In one instance enforcement officers apprehended two persons headlighting deer in Delta National Forest east of Rolling Fork. Fines levied against the pair amounted to $1,064," Strong noted.

"Officers in Lincoln County recently caught two violators who had killed five turkeys out of season. Fines for the illegal act amounted to over $1,000," he reported.

Department officials say the number of cases made are one sign that the reorganization brought about 17 months ago has resulted in tougher and more uniform fish and wildlife enforcement in the state.

In other news, Washington County conservation officer Jimmy L. Simpson of Wayside has been taken off the critical list at Delta Medical Center in Greenville.

Simpson, 40, was shot Monday, Nov. 17 as hunter Greg Causey was turkey hunting.

Wildlife officials reported, "Simpson, who was walking through the woods north of Lake Lee, was struck by a bullet from Causey's seven-millimeter rifle."

Later Washington County Sheriff Harvey Tackett called the incident, "one of those freakish hunting accidents that you see."

NSTL marathon winners listed

The first Space Station Half Marathon at the National Space Technology Laboratories was won by Howard Henderson last weekend.

Henderson ran a 13.1 mile course in 73 minutes.

Placing first in the women's division was Jerri Bennett, who finished the distance in 96 minutes.

Approximately 140 runners participated in the event.

A list of age group winners are:

Men 11-19 — 1. Alvin Leary; 2. Jason Sayner; 3. Joel Wamborgans.

Men 20-29 — 1. Tom McPherson; 2. Arthur Kurz; 3. Drew Carter.

Men 30-39 — 1. Tom Buller; 2. Dan Longino; 3. Charlton Mathews.

Men 40-49 — 1. Lindo Sullivan; 2. Elmer Beardshall; 3. Charles Hoff.

Men 50-59 — 1. Billye Butler;

2. Robert Sprague; 3. Charles Harrington.

Men 60 and over — 1. Tildon McGee.

Women 11-19 — 1. Carla

Miller; 2. Claudia Miller; 3. Tenna Turnbough.

Women 20-29 — 1. Patricia

Orton; 2. Laura Heston; 3. Barbara Keelan.

Women 30-39 — 1. Lynn Smiley; 2. Terri Woolbright; 3. Maureen Chappell.

Women 40-49 — 1. Ann Beardshall; 2. Margith Miller.

Semi-pro basketball teams invited to Bay tournament

Valena C. Jones' United Methodist Church's Fifth Annual Semi-Pro Double Elimination Basketball Tournament will be at the Valena C. Jones gymnasium in Bay St. Louis, December 13, 14, 20 and 21.

A tournament spokesman reports first through eighth place trophies will be awarded.

"Players will be awarded to 20 all-tournament players, the best defensive player, best offensive player, best all-around player, sportsmanship and most valuable player."

the spokesman said.

Entry fee will be $50.00. Teams wishing to enter should contact Willie (Zeke) Bradley at 467-6811 during the day or 467-8043 at night.

Entry deadline will be Wednesday, Dec. 10.

Primitive weapons season open

Mississippi black powder shooters may enjoy perhaps their favorite time of year with the primitive weapons season on deer which opened Tuesday.

The special season which extends through Friday, Dec. 12 permits primitive weapon shooters to hunt deer and small game in all areas of the state open for deer hunting and on many of the state's wildlife management areas, Bureau of Fisheries and Wildlife director Benny Herring said Friday.

He said hunters may take one legal buck each day of this special season. Primitive hunters are limited to no more than two antlerless deer during the primitive weapons season.

A primitive weapon is defined as single or double-barreled muzzle-loading rifles of at least .38 caliber and single or double-barreled muzzle-loading shotguns with single ball or slug, said law enforcement officials at the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

"Black powder sidearms are not permitted," Herring said.

Officials report all primitive firearms must use black powder with either percussion caps or flintlock. No telescopic sights allowed.

However, bow hunters may use longbows during this season by licensed archery-primitive weapons hunters. Dogs are not permitted for deer hunting during the primitive season.

During the primitive season, state wildlife enforcement officers will check shooters to make sure they are wearing in full view a hunter orange cap, hat or vest.

Deer hunting hours are one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sunset.

Good deer hunting noted at Malmaison

On Malmaison Wildlife Management Area west of Grenada, there were some 579 man-days of hunting for the period Nov. 22-24. State Department of Wildlife Conservation officials report.

These sportsmen took 31 legal bucks during this time, say biologists of the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

"Surveys made during the hunt also revealed that 'pressure' was fairly evenly distributed over the entire 10,000-acre public area," biologists note.

"The hunter density, or the number of sportsmen over a given area, on the portions accessible only by boat was one hunter for about every nine acres," department executive director Richard Yancey said recently.

"On the remainder of Malmaison there was one sportsman for nearly every 10 acres indicating very good overall distribution of usage," he added.

The Malmaison area was set up in 1970 as a public area for hunting and fishing. It is one of three areas owned by the Department.

Yancey indicated that department biologists made their determinations of hunter numbers from the new self-service permit card system for hunting on the area.

Hunters enter the area, take a card and fill out their name and address. Cards are returned to designated locations at the end of the trip with a report of any game bagged.

Officials say the section of Malmaison located west of the Yalobusha River and south of Highway 8, termed inaccessible by some, received as much hunting pressure as any other section of the area.

"Many hunters evidently like the fact that this part of the wildlife area is a little more remote than other more accessible areas. The surveys certainly proved that they are using it," according to Department biologists.

In addition to deer, squirrel, dove and turkey hunting and sport fishing, a large portion of Malmaison is flooded each year to provide feeding and wintering grounds for large numbers of migratory waterfowl. Biologists report that the annual winter flooding for waterfowl is now nearly complete. They are optimistic that with the recent addition of some 600 acres of adjacent McIntyre Scatters to Malmaison, waterfowl hunting should be better than usual.

On another portion of the wildlife area the Department maintains a large flock of captive Canada geese. The geese are part of an overall effort by the agency to restore the goose population to huntable numbers.

Most of the land is in bottomland hardwood. Since this type of key wildlife habitat has largely been lost to land clearing in recent decades across the entire Mississippi delta, maintaining the bottomland hardwoods on Malmaison is one of the most important features of the area's program.

SPORTS TALK

than digest a good book.

There often seems little room in sports for individuals who stand out both as students and as athletes. Reports of students who can neither write nor read but can run to daylight or shoot from downtown, have seriously undermined the credibility of the student athlete. Although the public and the press might have lost sight of the top athlete who also happens to excel in the classroom, he (or she) is there, has always been and always will be.

7UP Super Star Pat Haden of the Los Angeles Rams has a reputation for intelligence both on and off the football field. As an All-American quarterback at the University of Southern California, Pat tended to his grade point average as carefully as his pass completion average. He won a Rhodes Scholarship — the most prestigious honor bestowed upon a college student — and studied at Oxford University in England before becoming a Ram. He is now attending law school.

"The intelligent, well-read and articulate professional athlete is hardly the exception," said Haden. "It's unfortunate that the public has the image of the athlete who never learned how to tie his shoes. There are many fine athletes who have made names for themselves in fields that have nothing to do with tossing a football or hitting a baseball. Today's athlete knows he has to prepare himself for the day when he can no longer play professionally."

Pat's statistics haven't been too shabby on the field either. He was the NFC player of the year in 1978 and was named the league's Rookie of the Year in 1976. He still holds or shares seven US passing records.

Last year, he finished eighth in pass rating percentage in the NFL with a 68.2 average and had a pass completion record of 65.2 percent with 11 touchdowns. Not bad for a Rhodes Scholar.

Former professional ballplayers fill almost every conceivable profession from medicine to politics, music to mathematics. Hundreds of other athletes have possessed the business acumen to parlay their sports salaries into fortunes.

Before he had even graduated college, All-American basketball star Bill Bradley was being called a future occupant of the White House. Dollar Bill went to Oxford University on a Rhodes Scholarship to study government and history after single-handedly taking Princeton University to the semi-finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Later, he returned to his first love — basketball — and became an integral part of two championship Knicks teams. A little more than a year after his retirement, he was elected to the United States Senate.

Should Bradley have Presidential aspirations, he might find himself on a collision course with New York Congressman Jack Kemp. For several years now, the former San Diego Charger and Buffalo Bills quarterback has been mentioned as a candidate for national office.

Other athletes have also served in Congress. Bob Mathias, a two-time winner of the Olympic decathlon; Ralph Metcalf, the second fastest man in the world during Jesse Owens' conquest of Berlin in the 1936 Games; and Wilbur "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, a veteran pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates, were all recent members of the House of Representatives.

The lure of medicine has also attracted many top athletes. George "Doc" Medich earned a medical degree between pitching seasons with the Yankees and Pirates. Bobby Brown, an infielder with the Yankees in the late-1940's and '50's, traded his bat for a stethoscope. Ernie Vandeghe of the Knicks is also a physician today and Billy Cannon, a former Heisman Trophy winner, has a successful orthodontical practice. Roger Banister, the first man to break the four minute mile, today is a neurologist in Great Britain.

SSC cagers take d'Iberville

Rodney Corr scored 24 points as St. Stanislaus Varsity basketball team beat d'Iberville Monday night, 63-56.

Joe Sals netted 10 points, the only other St. Stanislaus player to score in double figures.

James Evans got 26 points for d'Iberville and Tommy Collier scored 14.

After both teams remained even through the first quarter, SSC pulled ahead in the second quarter to take a 34-26 lead at halftime.

Earlier in the evening, Brad Lamey topped off his 31-point night with six points in overtime as the St. Stanislaus junior varsity team nipped d'Iberville 53-46.

Both teams were tied at 46 at the end of regulation play when Lamey went to work and he Rock-A-Chaw defense shut out d'Iberville.

CHECK BOAT TRAILER ROLLERS

Does it seem as though your boat is not sliding off the trailer and winning back onto it as easily as it once did?

If so, the next time your boat is off its trailer take a close look at its rubber rollers.

Rotate each one of them, watching for flat spots caused by prolonged periods of being subjected to keel pressure, such as during winter storage.

Flat spots caused by such pressure can, of course, make rollers turn a lot harder when a boat is going off or on.

You may not find flat spots, but you'll still find some rollers that turn hard in their support brackets.

A bit of oil or white grease on their axle pins could free things up.

Occasionally, lengths of string or fishing line manage to wrap around roller axles, causing some friction.

And once in a while a support bracket will get a bump that bends it inward, making it rub against the end of the roller.

If all your trailer rollers rotate freely but the boat still seems to go off and on harder, the MerCruiser stern drive boathouse crew suggests you consider the following possible cause.

The keel rollers gradually get compressed from boat weight. If your trailer has padded bunks on each side that hold the boat steady and level, settling keel rollers will let more and more of the boat's weight rest on these bunks.

So lower the bunks a little to relieve this pressure.

You may be quite surprised at the improvement from this simple readjustment!

Local duck hunters set banquet

The third annual Hancock County Chapter-Ducks Unlimited banquet will be at Trapani's Shamrock Room, Dec. 16 with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m.

"This year's banquet will be a real blast," group spokesman Chris Lagarde of Bay St. Louis said. "We will have a carefully selected list of prizes, including a Marlin pump 12-gauge shotgun, fishing tackle, and camping goods of top quality," Lagarde noted.

"In addition, we will have 10 fine auction items, including seven outstanding limited edition art prints carefully selected by our committee and handsomely custom frames," he reported.

For tickets and information telephone 467-2350.

Lagarde said, "The national Ducks Unlimited organization was founded in 1937 to help restore and rehabilitate prime waterfowl breeding grounds in Canada, where over 70 percent of North America's waterfowl are hatched."

"These grounds were nearly destroyed as a result of the sudden and massive westward expansion of civilization after World War I and the subsequent draining and cultivation of the land. The severe drought of the 1930's also contributed to the decline of continental waterfowl populations," he noted.

Lagarde reported since its inception the national organization has completed over 1,700 wetland restoration projects.

"These projects have benefited man as well by creating

HOLIDAY FOODTIPS

All too rapidly it's here - Christmas.

With all the hustle and bustle of family gatherings, parties, shopping, decorating and celebrating, it's nice to know you've got a head start on your food. You'll have more time to enjoy the Christmas season.

What's the secret?

Using your freezer and storing food until the holidays.

Your freezer can be a real aid in advance preparation, but it is wise to review a few do's and don'ts.

Freezing does not improve any food product, and some foods should not be frozen.

YEAST BREADS

Yeast breads and rolls freeze well. Bake your bread, cool to room temperature, package in moisture-proof wrapping and freeze to zero degrees.

When ready to use, thaw in original wrapper and warm in oven if desired.

CAKES

Cakes freeze best if baked before freezing. Frost before freezing if frosting is the uncooked confection sugar kind. Boiled icings are best if applied after the cake has thawed.

COOKIES

Most cookies freeze well baked or unbaked. Freezing cookie dough does save freezer space.

PIES

Mincemeat and fruit pies freeze best unbaked. Cut holes in the upper crust just before baking; bake while still frozen. Bake at 425 degrees F for 15 minutes then at 325 degrees F until the juice boils up through the cut in the center of the top crust.

Cream pies, custard pies and meringues do not freeze well.

MAIN DISHCASSEROLES

Casseroles are harder to freeze because of flavor changes in ingredients.

For example: Peppers get stronger and onions get milder. Avoid fat in casseroles, too.

Get a head start on the holidays. Plan ahead and avoid the rush.

Annunciation society to sponsor 'Big Sale'

The St. Vincent de Paul Society of Annunciation Parish of north and central Hancock County will have a 'Big Sale' Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at their Thrift Shop located at the old Infant of Prague Church on Hwy. 603 near Standard Road in the White Cypress Community.

A group spokesman said this week, "On sale will be big bargains in clothing, linen, rugs and other household items."

"All who attend will be registered for a chance on a turkey," the spokesman reported.

"There will also be two raffles, one for a $50 bill, and the other for a set of dishes for eight and two stuffed animals," the spokesman stated.

"Proceeds from the sale and raffles will benefit the poor of north and central Hancock County," the spokesman said. "Anyone having items to donate for this sale, please contact Sister Josepha of Annunciation Parish at 255-1894," the spokesman added.

Pest expert warns of fruit tree scales

Homeowners and growers of apples, pears, peaches and plums should examine their trees this winter for scales, advises the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"San Jose scale may attack all of these trees," says Dr. Pat Harris, area pest management specialist with the extension service.

"White peach scale also may attack peach and plum trees," he adds.

Harris cites the application of a dormant oil spray as the most effective control measure for scale. He suggests spraying after leaves dropped and before buds swell in the spring.

"If infestations of scales go unchecked and are allowed to build to heavy infestations, trees may be killed," he warns.

"Young nymphs and adults remove sap from any part of the plant, reduce vigor and bluish fruits," Harris notes.

"Scales usually winter in the nymphal stage under the scale coverings on the trees. If not controlled, scales will develop in the spring and mature in May or June," he reports.

"After adults mate, females produce young called 'crawlers' which resemble mites. These crawlers or nymphs may spread to other trees on the feet of birds and on other insects. Some may be carried by wind or by transportation of infested plants by man," Harris explains.

"Other fruit trees or ornamental shrubs and trees also may be attacked by scales. For more information, see your county extension agent. Read and observe all label precautions and usages before using pesticides," he recommends.

According to a recent broadcast sponsored by Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center and The Prudential Insurance Company, women who used the drug DES during the 1950's to prevent miscarriages are no more susceptible than other women to breast cancer.

Concern was raised when media reports suggested that DES mothers ran an abnormally high risk of breast cancer. These reports, however, were later found to be based on unpublished data that had not been sufficiently analyzed.

Dr. Dana Brian, who with colleagues at the Mayo Clinic studied more than 400 patients who had taken DES during pregnancy, reports, "Of those 400 women, we found eight cases of breast

Gulfport firm acquires local agency

Bay woman joins Pass insurance corporation

GRETA G. DARROW

Greta G. Darrow of Bay St. Louis, a veteran of 17 years service in the insurance business, has joined Stewart Sneed Hewes, Inc. in Gulfport for marketing personal insurance lines. Company President John G. Thompson said this week.

Economist advises Christmas budgeting

"Make your Christmas gift list now, and check your budget to see how much you can afford to spend, The Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service suggests.

Dr. Julia Barnes, extension service family economics and management specialist, tells shoppers to rank their lists in order of priority and to include several gift suggestions for each person on the list.

"Let your gift list reflect a hobby or a certain need or want," she recommends. "Make a gift, pot a plant, paint a picture, or decorate a cake-whatever can fill a special need of someone you want to remember," Barnes adds.

"Ask your extension home economist to help you sharpen your shopping skills. Use newspapers, flier specials, catalogues and the telephone in your shopping," she states.

"Remember you want to enjoy the holiday season with your gifts of love, but make sure you don't spend more than you can afford," Barnes says.

"You don't want to struggle with bills for Christmas gifts this spring and pay a heavy credit cost, too. Make choices that will express your love and thoughtfulness and bring joy to the receiver. Don't try to keep up with anyone else, be yourself," she concludes.

"In this capacity, Darrow will be based at the Stewart Sneed Hewes, Inc. office in Pass Christian, which was formerly the E.A. Lang and Son Agency," Thompson reported.

"The recent acquisition of the 55-year old Lang Agency makes it possible for us to better serve our clients and potential clients in Hancock County and West Harrison County," Mr. Thompson said. "With her wide experience, Darrow is ideally qualified to work from the Pass Christian office," he noted.

Darrow worked for insurance companies and agencies in Louisiana before joining Stewart Sneed Hewes. She spent some 11 years with the Fred Dent Agency in Baton Rouge and the Leon Irwin and Co. agency in New Orleans.

She was born in New Orleans, but spent much of her early life overseas, primarily in Saudi Arabia. Her father was an engineer with international construction firms.

A native of New Orleans, Darrow and her husband Everett Darrow live in Bay St. Louis with their three children - David, age 17, Donna, 14, and Thomas, 12. She is a member of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church and has also been a member of Altrusa and the National Association of Insurance Women.

PENSION REQUIREMENTS

Approximately 620,000 elderly veterans or their survivors have received reminders in the mail that it's time once again to take a look at their income for this year to make certain it still meets Veterans Administration pension requirements.

A VA spokesman said recently, "The reminder came with their pension checks in the form of a card explaining that pensioners over 72 who have been receiving VA pensions for the last two years must report to VA any changes in the number or status of their dependents and any annual income increase that takes it above the VA income limits."

The pensioners who received the reminder cards are veterans or their survivors who chose at the end of 1978 to remain under what is now called the 'old' VA pension plan because it was to their advantage to do so. Their pension rates were frozen at the end of the year," the spokesman noted.

"A smaller group of pension recipients chose to switch to a more recent plan which offers higher rates to some pensioners, depending on individual circumstances," the spokesman reported.

"Pension recipients receiving the card need not report cost of living increases in their social security income since VA automatically records cost of living rate increases," the spokesman explained.

Money Talk By Norine Barnes

ADVICE ON WARRANTIES

The Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act, established in 1975, can help you get a good deal on warranties.

It helps you after you buy, by making it easier for you to force companies to keep their warranty promises.

Under the warranty act, all warranties must be easy to read and understand. They must be written in ordinary language and fine print is not allowed.

Every term and condition of the warranty must be spelled out in writing. If it isn't there, it isn't part of the warranty. Beware of spoken explanations of the warranty. What the sales clerk says about the warranty won't count when it comes time for warranty service. Check what's written in your warranty.

Basically, there are two types of written warranties—full and limited.

If you see the label 'full' on a warranty, it means:

- A defective product will be fixed (or replaced) free, including removal and reinstallation, if necessary;

- It will be fixed within a reasonable time after you complain;

- You will not have to do anything unreasonable to get warranty service (such as ship a piano to the factory);

- The warranty is good for anyone who owns the product during their warranty period;

- If the product can't be fixed (or hasn't been after a reasonable number of tries), you get your choice of a new one or your money back.

Check to see if a warranty, says 'full' - it's a quick way to know you're getting a lot of protection.

There's one important thing the word 'full' doesn't promise.

A full warranty doesn't have to cover the whole product. It may cover only a part of the product, like the picture tube of a television. Or it may leave out some parts, like the tires on a car. If your warranty covers only the picture tube and the sound goes bad, you pay.

Always check what parts the warranty covers.

A warranty is 'limited' if it gives you anything less than what a full warranty gives. 'Limited' means 'be careful' - something's missing.

For example, a limited warranty may:

- Cover only parts, not labor;

- Allow only a pro-rata refund or credit. (You get a smaller refund or credit the longer you have had the product;

- Require you to return a heavy product to the store for service;

- Cover only the first purchaser;

- Charge for handling.

A product can carry more than one written warranty. For example, it can have a full warranty on part of the product and a limited warranty on the rest.

CHICKENS AND EGGS

Mississippi's 6,758,000
layers produced 135 million eggs in October 1990, says the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

This was one percent below the 136 million eggs produced in October 1979. Of these, 103 million were Table Eggs, the remaining 32 million were Hatching Eggs.

Broiler-type chicks hatched in Mississippi during October totalled 22,980,000, (8 percent) above the October 1979 hatch.
The hatch of egg-type chicks was 913,000 (17 percent) below the 1,100,000 egg-type chicks hatched in October 1979.

There were 23,031,000 young chickens slaughtered under Federal Inspection during September 1990 in Mississippi.
This is nine percent above the 21,045,000 inspected during September 1979. September
post mortem condemnations were 1.74 percent, as compared to 2.25 percent in September 1979.

BROILER-TYPE

Hatcheries in the state set 6,507,000 eggs for broiler chicks during the week ending
Nov. 22, six percent above the previous week and seven percent above the corresponding week a year ago.

There were 5,891,000 broiler chicks placed on Mississippi farms during the week ending
Nov. 22, six percent above the previous week and 12 percent above the corresponding week a year ago.

Cumulative placements for 1990 are 266,287,000 broiler chicks - two percent above a year earlier.

EGG-TYPE

Hatcheries in the state set 131,000 eggs for egg-type chicks during the week ending
Nov. 22, seven percent below
the previous week and 63 percent below the 352,000 set during the comparable week a year ago.

Hatch of egg-type chicks was 217,000, one percent below
the previous week and 17 percent below the 260,000 hatched during the comparable week a year ago.

In the five states that accounted for about 26 percent of the hatch of all egg-type chicks in the U.S. in 1979, settings during the week ending Nov. 22, were down 17 percent but hatchings were up 10 percent from a year ago.

European tour offered to high school students

All senior high school and college-age students of the Gulf Coast are being offered a 25-day educational tour of four European countries from June 27 to July 2, with college credit available.

Bay St. Louis-Pass Christian Moderator Mary Lou Koch said this week, "The European Comparative Cultures Program will include Italy, Switzerland, France and England, and is sponsored by the Archdiocese of New Orleans under the direction of American International Education and Training, Inc."

"The students will travel in groups of eight with a local adult advisor. Five such groups will make up each traveling family for the experience," Koch explained.

"I am quite excited about working and traveling with students interested in learning more about their world," Koch explained.

"I have several students already planning to participate and I'd like to invite any interested student to call me at 467-7786 for a brochure and more information. Our first student-advisor meeting will be Sunday, Dec. 7, at Mount Carmel Academy, 7-27 Milne Boulevard in New Orleans, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Any student would like to learn more about the opportunity should plan to attend," Ms. Koch reported.

"Students and their moderators will fly from New Orleans to Rome, Italy where they will spend four days learning about the historic old city. All participants will have an opportunity for a papal audience as well," Koch noted.

"The origin of the City of Florence, Italy, dating back several centuries before Christ, will be studied the following three days then the young people will move on to the romantic city of Venice," she said.

"Four fun-filled days will be spent in Wengen, Switzerland, an Alpine resort area before continuing on to Lucerne," Koch stated.

"Paris, the largest city in continental Europe, will come alive to the participants as they explore history, art, food, and customs the next four days. The beautiful Mont St. Michel area will be studied during a guided tour on day 19," she continued.

"London, England, will be the students' new home the following five days as they soak up more history, attend theater productions, and meet local residents and tour the city by bus and on foot," Koch explained.

"On day 24 the students will pack baggage, gifts and souvenirs before boarding a plane to return to the U.S. to share with others the unusual experience of group travel," she added.

A historical tour of Hancock County

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the text of a talk by local historian Joe Pilet of Bay St. Louis, presented at a recent meeting of the Harrison County Historical Society in Pass Christian.

By JOE PILET

If I were asked to give you a Guided Tour of Hancock County, I would begin in Pass Christian.

I would first see that you were comfortably seated on a mini-bus. I would ask that you raise your hand if at any point in my lecture you could not hear me distinctly. I would ask, also, that you hold any questions and comments until the end of the trip when we would allocate a few minutes for a question and answer session.

So - shall we pretend for the next 20 minutes we are seated on a mini-bus? The day is sunny and pleasant with temperature at about 70 degrees. The bus is clean and tidy and the windows have just been polished.

Now we are ready to leave. Here we are - seated on a bus in the parking area of the Pass Christian Public Library in Harrison County, Mississippi. Did you know this area was originally a part of Hancock County?

Hancock County was created in 1912, five years before Mississippi was admitted to the Union. Only eight counties had been previously organized. The present counties of Harrison, Pearl River and Stone were all once a part of Hancock County.

The county is now about one-fourth of its original acreage, the present size being approximately 485 square miles.

The driver has started his engine and is headed toward US-90. He will turn right and travel along the starting point of that vast 27 mile-long stretch of man-made beach which extends east from Henderson Point all the way to Biloxi. The view is magnificent.

In the distance you can see Marianne Light - a sort of land-mark that calls to mind the early beginning of our history.

As you recall, La Salle once explored this coast. In 1662 he set foot on the shores of the Gulf of Mexico - and has never been heard from since. Later in 1699 d'Iberville came to the Gulf Coast to place the flag of France on claimed territory.

Our bus is now approaching the Bay Bridge. This bridge is a four-lane, well lighted, two mile long concrete structure which was built in 1954 at a cost of $9 million.

D'Iberville named the body of Water it spans in honor of King Louis IX of France, crusader - explorer - and saint. Later on his brother, Bienville, explored the shoreline on Aug. 25, 1699, which happened to be the Feast Day of Saint Louis, and he named the land Bay St. Louis in honor of that distinguished saint.

At that time, of course, the Bay of Saint Louis could only be crossed by a strong swimmer, by raft or by boat. In early days of settlement, a ferry ran from Henderson Point to Bay St. Louis on a rather irregular schedule.

Then, in 1928, a wooden bridge was built which was replaced in 1954 by the bridge we are now crossing. When we get to the center of this bridge we are in Hancock County! The county was named for John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Please look to your left. Running parallel to our Bay Bridge is the railroad bridge. The railroad was responsible to a large extent for the development of our county. First there was the New Orleans-Mobile-Chattanooga line of 1872 which in 1878 was purchased by the Louisville and Nashville.

Now our bus is stopping for the traffic light at the beginning of Bay St. Louis corporate limits. See the sign? It says, 'Bay St. Louis, Gateway to the Gulfcoast.'

Bay St. Louis is a small city of about 6,000 souls and has been known by three names: The Choctaw Indians called it 'Chi-ca-Poula,' meaning the place of the bad grass. I suppose they were referring to rockchaws and sand spur grasses. Then for a time it went by the name of Shieldsboro.

In the year 1790 Thomas Shields got possession of a grant on the shore of Bay St. Louis. Apparently, he was a man of influence and popularity and the area became known as Shieldsboro in his honor.

For years there was continuous bickering about by which name the town should be known. Postmasters received letters addressed both ways at the same time. In 1858, the town was incorporated under the name Shieldsboro. The same charter exists today with the name changed to Bay St. Louis.

The light has turned green. Our driver is turning to his right, and if you'll look to your right you will see the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club and the boats in its harbor. The towns of Bay St. Louis and Waveland are sister-cities and share several facilities including the Bay-Waveland Garden Club.

Waveland is four miles to our south, a city of approximately 4,600 people. We will visit points of interest there during this tour.

But more about the yacht club. Historian James Stevens reports the first regatta on the Gulf Coast after the War Between the States was created through the leadership of Bay St. Louis people. The Daily Picayune on Saturday, Aug. 10, 1897, carried an advance story about the regatta.

The section we are now traveling is North Beach Boulevard.

You will be interested in seeing the estate of Pete Fountain, located on Julia at North Beach Boulevard. Fountain, a musician of note, a connoisseur of art, and with impeccable taste is restoring this house and developing the land in harmony with its surroundings. Built in approximately 1930, the timbers of the home are said to be of heart cypress.

The most interesting home on North Beach is known as Elmwood. It is perhaps the only home of national significance still standing in this community. Basically Federal in style and with strong Caribbean influences, the house was built in approximately 1837. A row of elm trees once lined the carriage way.

The property was originally a 500-acre tract and a land grant from the Spanish government to Melittle Lassassier. When the land was purchased by Jesse Coward, he secured a fine group of craftsmen and carefully selected all materials used in construction of this home. Bricks were brought from Spain as ship ballast. Mortar was made from crushed clam shells. Indians had left a mound of these shells conveniently on the beach in front of the property.

Another interesting home on North Beach, now owned by the Hunter Kimbroughs, was built by Jesse Coward in the latter part of the 1820's. Here the Cowards lived until Elmwood was completed.

When the Kimbroughs moved in, and during the process of remodeling, a petition was removed and a bottle found in the wall contained the history of the house. It was written by Gertrude Coward Penny, who as a bride lived happily in this home.

We would point out many other North Beach properties equally worthy of mention, however, our tour time is limited so let's go south along Beach Boulevard and get a bird's eye view of some other properties of interest.

We are now passing the familiar Bay Bridge.

Note the Breath Home, 616 North Beach. It has an octagonal corner porch, decorative shingles and Victorian cross work. On the lawn is an ancient live oak tree, its center being a cavity is said to have been used during the War Between the States to hide away silver.

The Winnard House at 502 North Beach is a fine example of high Queen Anne style of about 1895. The deMontluzin House, 208 North Beach, was built in 1900, is Greek revival and of excellent proportions.

We are now approaching Main Street, the thoroughfare which separates North from South Beach Boulevard. To your left is the Hancock Bank, built in 1901 as the bank's first permanent office.

Turning down Main Street and to our left is the Hancock County Courthouse. It was built in 1911 at a total cost of $25,000. Note the stately modified Ionic Columns.

Let's stop briefly for a better view of the Main Street Methodist Church. Built in 1850, our architect, Fred Wagner, tells us this is the only good example in this community of 'carpenter Gothic.'

Wagner also said there is an almost exact replica of this church in Port Gibson, Miss., the little town Sherman found too pretty to burn.

We will turn here from Main to Second Street to look at the old Woodman of the World Building, now being restored by Donald and Dorothy Brown. They have carefully researched the history of this interesting old building, constructed in about 1907, and were able to use much of the original wood in reconstruction.

The building will house about 15 small shops, a coffee bar and a saloon. Opening date is set for December 12-13 and 14.

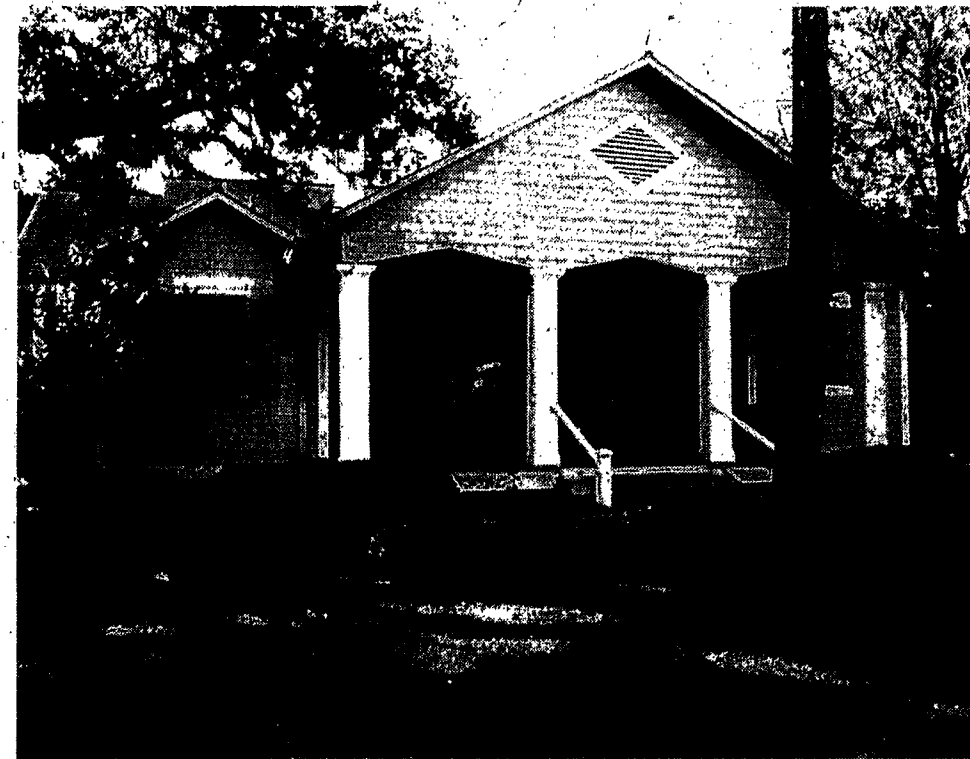

The Cedar Rest Cemetery adjoins the Woodman of the World Building. Although ravaged by many storms there are still remaining many interesting markers, a few Woodmen of the World

Queen Anne cottage on South Second Street.

The Sea Coast Echo feature.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1980-1C

The Otis Home on South Beach Boulevard.

We are now approaching St. Stanislaus, founded in 1854 by the Brothers of the Sacred Heart. Now in its 127th year, this Catholic school was originally established as a business college for boys and young men.

It boasts the longest pier in the coastal area, 1,100 feet in length and there are nine buildings on its campus. A well rated school of distinction, St. Stanislaus lists many outstanding citizens in its Hall of Fame.

On our return trip to Pass Christian we will ask our driver to turn down Ulm Avenue that we may stop and read the historical marker in front of the St. Augustine Seminary.

The corner stone tells us the oratorium was erected in 1936, R. C. Springer, the architect. The seminary was founded by Divine Word in 1920 and moved from its original location in Greenville to Bay St. Louis in 1923.

It is the oldest existing seminary for training young negros as brothers and priests, however, the order has now been integrated. The stained glass windows in this building and some of the wood sculptured figures are well worth studying. Grounds are spacious and well kept with mass plantings of camellias, azaleas and there are some rare trees.

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church is located at 230 South Beach. It replaces a building lost in the great fire of 1908 and combines several styles. A very interesting structure.

414 South Beach is known as the Swoop House. It has been occupied by the same family for over 80 years. Kitchen and dining room form a separate wing. The house is an excellent example of early Greek revival.

Let's stop for a close look at the Otis-Green house at 418 South Beach. Reportedly this house was designed for an exposition in New Orleans and moved to its present location by barge. Note the cast iron Corinthian capitals on the porch columns.

At 706 South Beach we'll see the Aker's home. It is a two-story pink cottage, known as 'the Spanish Custom House.' It is probably the oldest building in Bay St. Louis, the date 1787 is inscribed in its brickwork. The building is solid brick with stucco finish - from the Spanish period, of course.

806 South Beach was long known as 'Nellie's Villa,' however, it was renamed 'Marian Oaks' by the Lionel Baxters, present owners. The home is refined Greek Revival of the late 1850's.

We are now approaching Christ Episcopal Church at 912 South Beach. The church sits well back from the beach and was built in 1972 - a very modern structure which received an architectural award.

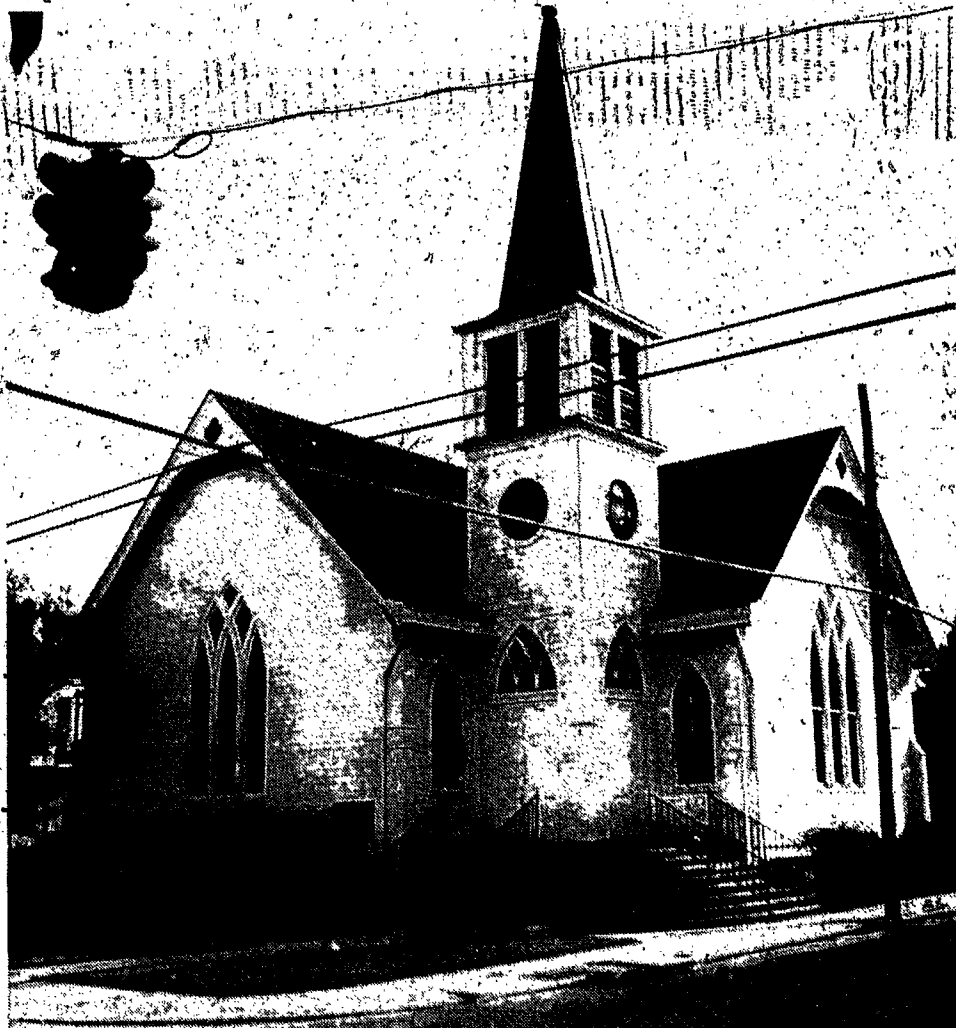

Here's the Brignac Estate - beautiful home with excellent wrought iron details.

It is difficult to define where Bay St. Louis ends and Waveland begins. But the atmosphere in Waveland is somehow 'different.'

Frequently referred to as 'little New Orleans,' Waveland is a fast growing town with excellent shopping centers. It is also the home of Nereids - an all-women Carnival Crew known for its spectacular Carnival Parades and beautiful balls.

The Waveland Town Hall once housed a public school. A fishing pier has been dedicated to the memory of Garfield Ladner with an unprecedented record of eight-times elected to the Waveland mayorship.

We are enroute to Port Bienville, the National Space Technology Laboratories and to Pearlinton, once the location of the world's largest sawmill.

We will also visit the Kiln, named for its early industry of tar and charcoal kilns and in later prohibition days for its potable 'moonshine' whiskey.

We'll stop at Necaise Crossing to see a 500 gallon rion 'pot' which they prepare gumbo for an annual Gumbo Festival.

We'll visit the Rotten Bayou Cemetery to see the many fenced burial plots and on to Diamondhead, that posh area of lovely homes, excellent club and pleasure facilities and we'll cross the beautiful Pearl River which divides Mississippi and Louisiana.

We'll see fine herds of cattle, hog farms, catfish farms, acres after acres of land devoted to soy beans, pine trees - and we'll breathe fresh pine-scented air, smell the sweet newly ploughed country earth, enjoy cloud effects over quiet bayou waters - we'll visit Buccaneer State Park with its lovely nature trails and exciting wavepool and we'll revel in the beauty of McCloud Park before making our last stop - the Pride of Mississippi - the incomparable tourist center located just off I-10.

It's beautifully landscaped, tastefully furnished and staffed with knowledgeable and friendly hostesses who ably represent Hancock County and the State of Mississippi.

The tour's over, folks. I have enjoyed being your guide.

A Mississippi Association of Realtors, Inc. spokesman said, "Completion of all three Realtors Institute courses lead to a designation as graduate of the Realtors Institute provided the student is a member in good standing of one of Mississippi's 27 local realtor boards, the Mississippi Association and the National Association of Realtors."

The institute is open to the public and is a course of real estate study sponsored by the Mississippi Association of Realtors, a trade-professional association.

WINTER COVER CROPS

There is still time to plant winter crops on low organic matter soil. Farmers can build organic matter slightly by returning

STATE OFFICIAL CHAIRS PRC MEETING — Dr. Charles Holladay, Mississippi's superintendent of education, met with Pearl River Junior College officials and superintendents of school districts within PRC's six supporting counties in Poplarville recently to discuss improving ways of using the junior college's resources more effectively. Holladay pledged full support from the state department in any arrangement between Pearl River and area school districts.

stalk residue to the soil and using winter cover crops. Most commonly used cover crops are hairy vetch and winter peas, both legumes, or winter cereals such as rye and wheat.

The legumes will add about 30-40 pounds of nitrogen for use by the row crop.

Cereals will not fix nitrogen, but will produce earlier spring growth and can be turned under so summer crops can be planted earlier.

Seed about 35-40 bushels of vetch or peas per acre. It will take one and one-half bushels of wheat or ryegrass per acre.

DON'T GUESS, SOIL TEST

Following a poor crop year, many farmers may have a tendency to want to skimp on production expenses the next season. The only true way to determine the most efficient use of lime and fertilizer and keep costs in line in 1981 is to soil test on a field-by-field basis.

If you soil test now for analysis this fall, you'll have time for those important decisions on lime and fertilizer investments. Making sure your soil is fertile and at the right pH range is one of the best ways to reduce the risk of another low yield next year.

SOYBEAN SEED UPDATE

There won't be an abundance of planting seed for 1981, but there should be enough.

Some early varieties like Bedford and Forrest will be low in both supply and quality. Later maturing varieties may have a little better quality.

Saving some seed until the picture clears seems to be the wise thing to do, but be sure to test the seed for germination and vigor. Also, keep stored seed at about 12 percent moisture.

CROP RESIDUES FOR FORAGE

The short supply of hay this winter will cause many producers to use frosted grass, field gleanings and crop residues as much as possible.

If crop residue, such as soybean stubble in large round bales, is stored without shelter, you might plan to feed it before using grass hay.

Grass will "thatch off" better and keep longer in large round bales than will the soybean stubble.

Since some areas will contain frosted grass usable by livestock, an electric fence may be the best alternative for using field gleanings.

FEED SHORTAGE INFO
The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce has established a hay service to help farmers who have excesses and shortages of hay.

Information can be obtained by writing, P. O. Box 5307, Pondera Station, Jackson, Miss. 39210, or calling (601) 961-4066.

If you foresee a feed shortage this winter, check with the County Extension Office about ways to extend and balance your winter feed program.

FALL TILLAGE

High fuel costs and renewed emphasis on soil conservation are causing us to look closely at how we manage our soybean land.

On sloping erosive hill soils, perform little or no tillage after harvest. Any tillage done in these situations should be minimal and should leave the land rough and open to soak up winter rain.

Likewise, the heavy clay soils of the Delta need little or no fall tillage unless perennial weeds such as johnsongrass, bermuda grass or vines are severe problems.

On soils with a definite hardpan, deep tillage with chisels or subsoil plows in the fall to break up the compacted zone is recommended. Heavy rains do not need this treatment.

Ag Affairs

No way windmills can compete with Persian Gulf oil in electrifying the rural landscape. Disappointing? Yes. But true? Positively, say researchers out in the state of Kansas where the prairie winds are as ceaseless as the accumulation of taxes to be paid.

So in the face of higher and higher prices for oil, energy planners still can't contemplate relief anytime soon by trapping the wind's energy, even in the American prairies where its constancy and velocity are legend.

The scientific facts are that more than 40 years ago, from 1932-1938, two Kansas State University electrical engineers made extensive studies of the possibilities of utilizing the state's wind energy. Yet the difficulties R. G. Kloeffler and E. L. Sitz pinpointed in their work are still with us and no solution is in sight.

Pumping water for livestock is another matter, and accounts for the century old practice of utilizing picturesque windmills out on those solitary plainscapes to turn the gears that draw a small but steady stream of water into a holding trough to water livestock.

Even in the late 19th century Kansas State researchers fiddled around with a jumbo 14 feet long by eight feet in diameter windmill designed so simply, they said, that any farmer with a hammer and saw and a little help from his blacksmith could assemble. Then, as early as 1914-1916 there followed university experiments on wind-electric plants. Kloeffler and Sitz described their model as a large wind wheel of the multibladed type that was connected by stepped up gears to a generator. The whole rig was mounted atop a high tower and voltage regulation was attained through the use of relays.

Around 1925 commercial wind-electric plants using two and three bladed propellers appeared on the plains market, and owners around Kansas reportedly were generally satisfied. Yet the two researchers set out to improve the operation of these plants and increase their efficiency to benefit Kansas farmsteads remotely located far from then existing power lines.

All of their research and experiments proved that while at first they could generate electricity as cheaply as with engine power using fuel, the wind power failed to give service as reliable and complete as did the engines. They summarized their findings in KSU Engineering Experiment Station Bulletin No. 52 in 1946 as follows:

"The cost of electric energy from a power line will likely range from three to six cents per kilowatt-hour compared to a probable cost of 12 to 30 cents per kilowatt-hour when furnished by any other form of home electric plant. Hence, "they concluded, "whenever possible the farmer should secure service from a transmission line."

A real problem exists even in the generally windy plains states with sustained wind velocities. There also they are beset with occasional calm days and a slackening in wind velocity at night below operating efficiency.

Nutrition And You

Trace Minerals
Q: How important are trace minerals to our health?

A: They are required in such tiny amounts that they may seem inconsequential, but they should not be underestimated. Even minor deficiencies can have a negative impact on health, according to Dr. James Scala, a noted authority on nutrition and vice president of Science and Technology at Shalkee Corporation. As with all essential nutrients, we could not live without them.

Q: Which trace minerals are the most important?

A: Iron, iodine and zinc have long been recognized as important minerals for our health. The National Academy of Sciences recently proposed the addition of RDA's (Recommended Daily Allowances) for six more minerals: chromium, copper, fluorine, manganese, molybdenum, and selenium.

Q: Does the average American get these minerals from his diet?

A: Nutritional problems that affect the supply of vitamins also affect the supply of trace minerals. It is important to realize that the adequacy of trace mineral nutrition is not merely a matter of quantity. Depending upon the form in which a trace mineral is available in the diet, the amount available to the body can vary dramatically. Fifty percent of the American diet now consists of processed foods, which have been shown to be low in trace minerals.

Q: How can I insure that I am getting enough trace minerals?

A: Trace minerals can be taken in dietary supplements. Research is currently being done on trace minerals in animals. If it should be proved that mammals require certain amounts of silicon, tin, nickel and vanadium, these minerals may some day be given an RDA for humans as well.

IF YOU'RE IN THE HABIT OF FALLING OFF YOUR DIET AND EATING A FORBIDDEN GOODIE, TAKE THEM AND SEE HOW IT CAN HELP THE VERY ACT OF CAREFULLY BREWING THE TEA, POURING IT OUT, SIPPING IT SLOWLY, ACTUALLY CAN TAKE YOUR MIND—AND STOMACH—OFF THOSE FATTENING SWEETS AND KEEP YOU FROM GOING BACK TO THE COOKIE JAR FOR MORE!

The Resters introduce the phonograph to Leetown

Otho Rester of Leetown, RFD Playville, now deceased, said, "One Sunday morning over 70 years ago when we were on our way to church, as we were passing the Perkins home one-fourth mile from Caesar church, we heard music such as we had never heard before. My Dad stopped the team pulling our wagon. As we sat in the wagon in the middle of the road listening, a lively march was being played by a brass band. None of us had ever before heard music like that."

"The music stopped. We started on to the church service, but my father had hardly said, 'get up' to the team when we heard a chorus singing a sacred song, he stopped again. We had heard this old song many times before, but had never before heard it sung like that."

"My father walked over the porch of the house, about 100 feet away, from which the music was coming. We all followed him. We were so charmed, so spell bound with this new experience in music that time slipped by unnoticed so fast that we missed the church service."

"This man Perkins had recently moved to Caesar and put in a big turpentine business. He had built the biggest and the finest house in that area just southeast of Caesar. He had bought a new talking machine and had it on the porch where it was cool on a summer morning."

"We did not let Dad rest until he ordered a talking machine. Up to that time no one in the Leetown Community had ever heard a talking machine. Many of us did not know that such a thing existed."

"When dad sent off the order for ours, we children told the neighbors about it. The fact that the Resters were going to have a talking machine was soon known all over the community before it got there. The machine finally arrived. The news quickly spread all over the area. The whole community turned out that first night to hear the 'thing,' as they called it, perform. My older brothers read the instructions and soon got it going. Never before or since have I seen such anticipation, such expectancy in the expressions of people as were mirrored on the faces of our neighbors as the talking machine was prepared for operation."

"A good selection of records had come with the talking machine. As it started playing the first record, there was undivided and rapt attention from all present. The record was a lively one."

"Hearing for the first time such music was an experience

I am sure, none of those present ever forgot. The next record was by a master of the violin in which the fiddler thrilled all who were listening with the sweetest music we had ever heard."

"When the lively music started one thing happened that we did not anticipate. We had an old cur dog we called 'Old Pup.' When the music started, 'Old Pup' was completely befuddled, became highly excited and started running round and round and yelping in excited confusion."

"The cats thought 'Old Pup' was after them, they scattered in all directions. The longer the music played, the more excited 'Old Pup' got. We had to take him out back and lock him up in a stable so the people could hear what was going on. The neighbors stayed until midnight. The records were played over and over, especially a comic record."

"Back then, there were no such things as radios, phonographs, tape recorders, or TV's or any other kind of music except that produced by the people themselves on old time organs, fiddles, french harps, and now and then a banjo, or songs sung by the people themselves."

"I don't remember ever seeing a guitar or mandolin until after I was grown. At the old time dances, there'd be usually a fiddler, or maybe a man playing a French harp for the music."

"There was something magic about the old time fiddler which Sam Walter Foss expressed thusly, 'There's music, like the harpers played before the ancient kings, when the old man takes the fiddle and goes feeling for the strings—there's laughter choked with teardrops when the old man sings.'"

"While the music in the old days was crude by present day standards, it was usually rendered with intense feeling and lively rhythm that went to the hearts of all who heard it. Music, such as we had in the 'Good Old Days,' was not 'canned music' such as you hear much of today—it was more charged with emotion and expressed more the true feelings, whether tender, gay or sad."

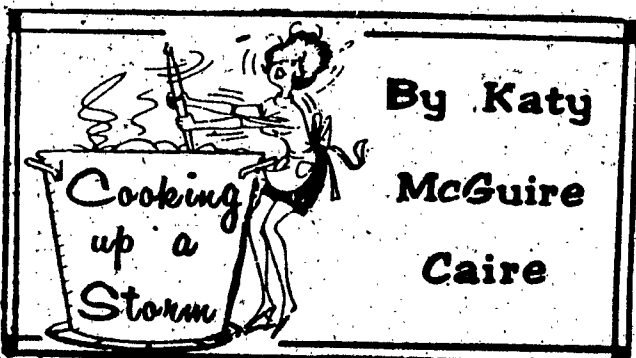

"The music I like is that produced for the very love of it—not sung or played according to some set pattern that is thought will produce the most money."

By my standards, which I admit may be very poor, most of the music I hear over radio and TV does not measure-up it stirs no emotions. Maybe the new fangled music is right from an artistic standpoint, but not from the standpoint of real life."

Some of the most perfect music, according to my standards, that I ever heard was the lilting, carefree folk songs sung from the heart by Negroes in the cotton fields in my youth."

I once heard an old Negro say, "There's 'get up' and there's glory in that singing." Sometimes I think we tend to educate ourselves out of real music into an artificial art something that is scientifically measured out, correct, but without the heart throb and ecstasy of life."

When French settlers from Acadia (now Nova Scotia) found their way down to Louisiana's lush countryside, they added a new dimension to the cooking of the area - entirely new, though closely related to the Creole cooking developed earlier when French settlers, far away from their familiar spices, vegetables and meats - turned to local Indian herbs and foods.

Local people called this 'Cajun' cooking, mispronouncing its French Acadian origins ... home-cooking, country style, all-in-one-pot cooking of the early Acadians - a hospitable, friendly folk always eager to welcome an extra guest at the table.

Today's Cajuns, as busy as any others these pre-Christmas days, still enjoy the long-cooking methods of their ancestors, but also have developed shortcuts, as in today's recipe.

Here's ...

CAJUN PORK CHOPS

- 6 pork chops
- 1 tablespoon of butter
- 6 slices onion
- 6 green pepper rings

- 1 cup raw rice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dashes (one-fourth teaspoon pepper, cayenne)
- 2 cups tomato sauce (your own, or two 8-ounce cans)
- 4 cups water

Brown the chops on both sides in butter in a large skillet. (I use my trusty large black iron skillet that's even older than I am, but use your electric skillet or whatever you wish).

Top each pork chop with an onion slice and a pepper ring, then add the rice to the skillet. Combine all the remaining ingredients, pour into the skillet.

Cover and simmer over low heat for an hour or a bit more, until the liquid is absorbed and the rice is done. Serve at once to four or six hungry diners.

I have often cooked this ahead of time, not quite to the state of 'doneness,' then reheated.

(Copyright, 1980, Katharine D.M. Caire)

P.S. — And, if the budget's on the down side, as whose isn't these days, slice the chops into strips or chunks, and add a bit more rice and sauce when you assemble the recipe, to make it go farther.

BROILER-TYPE

Hatcheries in the state set 6,164,000 eggs for broiler chicks during the week ending Nov. 15, slightly below the previous week but two percent above the corresponding week a year ago.

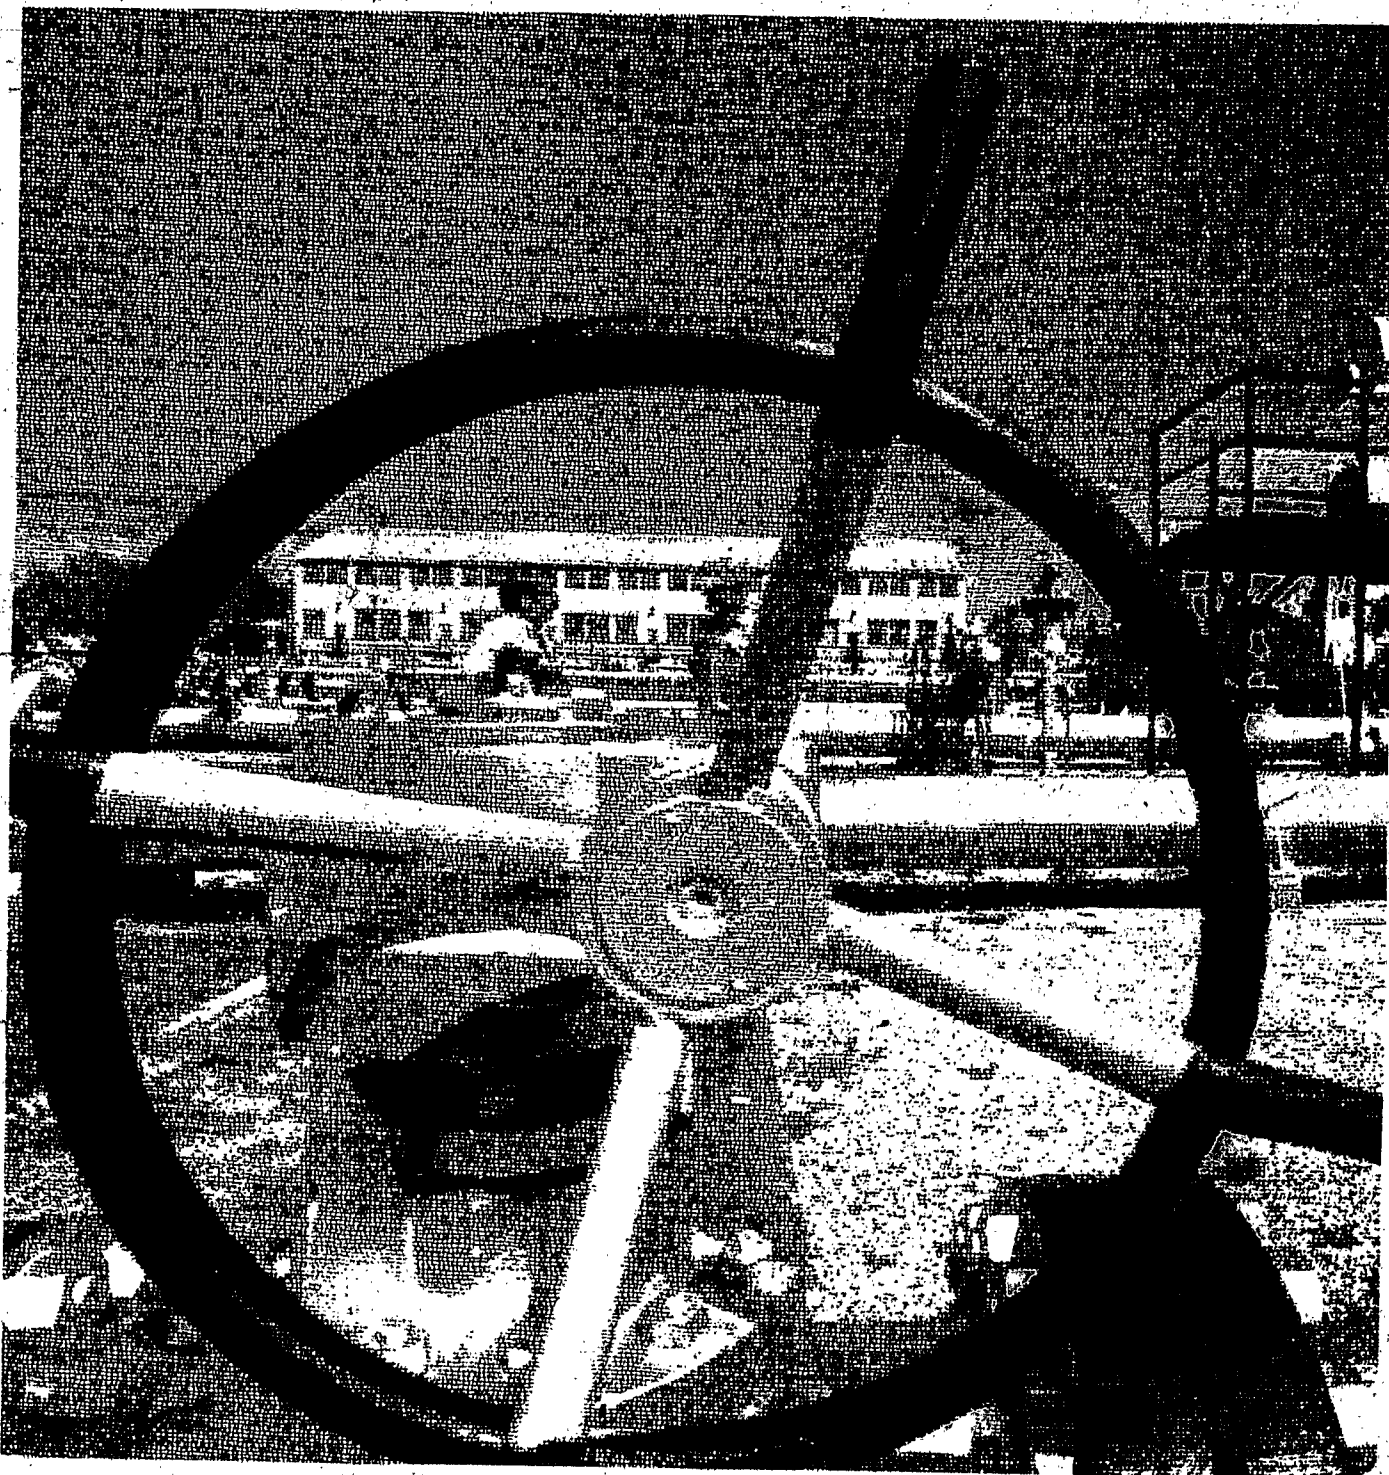

There were 5,536,000 broiler chicks placed on Mississippi farms during the week ending Nov. 15, 18 percent above the previous week and 11 percent above the corresponding week a year ago.

Cumulative placements for 1980 or 260,398,000 broiler chicks—two percent above a year earlier.

EGG-TYPE

Hatcheries in the state set 141,000 eggs for egg-type chicks during the week ending Nov. 15, two percent below the previous week and 57 percent below the 328,000 set during the comparable week a year ago.

In the five states that accounted for about 26 percent of the hatch of all egg-type chicks in the U.S. in 1979, settings during the week ending November 15, were down 47 percent and hatchings were down 11 percent from a year ago.

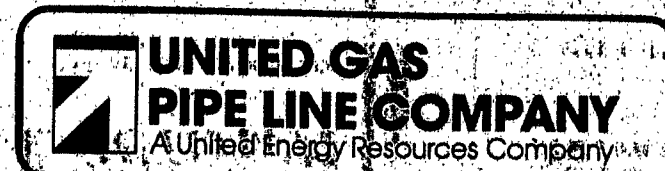

We're looking for Gulf South energy supplies — wherever they can be found

As the Gulf South continues to grow and expand, United Gas continues to seek new natural gas reserves to supply the basic energy demands of the existing homes, businesses and industries that are the foundation of our economy.

It's a difficult job. It's also very costly. But wherever natural gas can be found and produced, United Gas personnel are at work, seeking to bring portions of this new gas into our system serving the Gulf South.

This responsibility takes our people from Mexico to Alaska, from the Rocky Mountains to the Gulf of Mexico. It takes thousands of man-hours and hundreds of millions of dollars, new ideas, ingenuity, and the know-how of an experienced company.

That's the way we do things at United Gas—where the search for new energy never stops.
